"Constitutional Right to Privacy" Stoutly Defended by Utility Magistrate in Brief Appearance

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The long, subpoenaing chase after Howard C. Hopson tonight took on certain comic opera trappings, toned down by contemplation of a possible Senate contempt citation against the finally-located utilities magnate.

The stiff-arming of a Senate lobby investigator as he sought to serve a subpoena on the rotund chief stockholder of the Associated Gas and Electric System precipitated the trouble.

Aroused members of the Senate investigating committee quickly gathered testimony that Chairman O'Connor, democrat, New York, of the house lobby by probing committee, had arranged for police protection of the will of the wisp utilities man when he finally appeared today as a house witness.

Both house and Senate investigators had searched for him for weeks, but the latter were unsuccessful.

O'Connor quickly issued an emphatic denial that he or any member of the committee had given instructions that a Senate subpoena server be kept away from Hopson.

"We found a man they couldn't find," said O'Connor, somewhat proudly. "They are welcome to him, but they ought to let him finish a meal before they take him over."

Hopson finally was served with a house subpoena last Sunday near Spring Lake, N. J. The serving ended at least one part of a hide-and-seek game that at one time saw Hopson stopping in the same hotel where Chairman O'Connor, but moving on after eluding both house and Senate subpoena wavers. A private detective identified only as "Birmingham," reportedly located Hopson, guarded him all last night, and accompanied him tonight to an undisclosed stopping place.

The actual appearance of the rotund

Ferris, 3 Companions Get Life in Slaying

DETROIT, Aug. 13.—(AP)—A recorder's court jury of six men and six women returned a verdict of first-degree murder against William Lee Ferris, Florence and Loretta Jackson and Jean Miller late this afternoon for the slaying of Howard Carter Dickinson, New York attorney.

The jury was out two hours and minutes.

In reporting its verdict against Miller, the jury recommended "mercy," which however, was without effect, as the sentence in Michigan for first-degree murder is mandatory life imprisonment.

As the jury entered the courtroom, Jean Miller and Loretta Jackson fainted. Ferris merely grinned.

F. D. R. INFLUENCE ALTERED TAX BILL, HASTINGS INFERS

Republican Senator's Hinted Accusation Issued as La Follette Moves To Resubmit Amendments.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—A direct inference that President Roosevelt influenced the Senate finance committee's sudden reversal on the tax bill was made in a statement tonight by Senator Hastings.

"It is a Roosevelt measure and I want him and the democratic party to take it and make the most of it," the Delaware republican added.

In his statement, issued on the eve of formal Senate consideration of the bill with all provisions for boosting taxes on little incomes eliminated, Hastings said he left the city Saturday with the understanding all rates had been agreed upon by the finance committee of which he is a member.

"Senator Barkley returns on Monday, after having spent a week-end with the President," Hastings said, "and a meeting is had on Monday at 2 o'clock and the bill rewritten practically in accordance with the President's desires."

It was Barkley who moved consideration of the La Follette amendments, previously approved on Saturday, which lowered personal income tax exemptions from $2,500 to $2,000 for married persons and $1,000 to $800 for single persons, and raised surtaxes in the lower as well as the higher bracketed incomes. These amendments were stricken yesterday by an 8-to-7 vote.

La Follette to Re-Introduce. His statement was issued after Senator La Follette announced he would reoffer his small-income amendments on the floor for another showdown.

If they fail of adoption he will offer less drastic alternative proposals.

Democratic leaders expressed confidence, meanwhile, that all efforts to raise taxes on small incomes, mentioned in the President's message, would be rejected. They expected debate might begin tomorrow to last the remainder of the week.

All extraneous riders will be met by tabulating motions shutting off debate, according to the Democratic steering and policy committees last week.

ROOSEVELT SIGNS VETS' PENSION BILL

Spanish War Benefits Restored; Tells Others Why They Are Left Out.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—

Assessing his action established no precedent for World War pensions, President Roosevelt today signed the Spanish-American War veterans bill.

The bill restores all pensions to the dependents and the veterans of the Spanish-American War, Boxer rebellion and Philippine insurrection at a cost estimated by the veterans administration as $45,581,000 a year.

It will return approximately 50,000 persons to take care of only through the aid of the bill.

The presidential signature was put on the measure a few hours before the lapse of the 10th legislative day after passage. Had he not signed it by midnight, the bill would automatically have become law.

Explains Reason.

Taking cognizance of World War pension proposals and indirectly of the fact that World War veterans with non-service connected disabilities were cut from the rolls under the 1933 economy act and have not been restored, Mr. Roosevelt said in a formal statement:

"The Congress on many occasions has recognized that because of the complete absence of any system of policy initiated during or immediately following the Civil War, the Indian War, and the Spanish-American War, and because of lack of adequate medical care from the point of view of modern standards, the veterans of these earlier wars could be compensated and taken care of only through some form of pension system."

"In the case of the World War, however, the Congress at the very beginning of the war adopted an entire new system of care and benefit. This new system, applied to all who fought in the World War, extended to them additional compensation, vocational rehabilitation and the adjusted service certificate. (The bonus.)"

"The veterans of the Spanish-American War, now approaching an average age of 62 years, had none of these advantages, except hospitalization in recent years. Their case, therefore, can not be compared to the case of the World War veterans. For the same reason, the approval of this bill establishes no precedent for similar pensions for the World War group; theirs is an entirely different case."

Unusual Housing Shortage Here To Bring Rent Increase This Fall

Caused by an unusual shortage in apartment and house vacancies, an average increase of about 5 per cent may be looked for in rents for home city in about 5 per cent.

The Atlanta Real Estate Board, said yesterday.

It was considered normal in pre-depression years, said Mr. Stout, for the percentage of vacancies in rental home properties to run about 10 per cent, whereas this percentage during the summer this year has ranged between 2 and 5 per cent. This circumstance brings its natural result in increased rentals, although this does not apply, he stated, to all properties.

"Quite a number of apartment house owners have refused to raise their rents," he said, "although others have advanced them in varying percentage. I should, say, including those which have made no advance whatever, that the average for the entire city is about 5 per cent."

Cessation of Building.

Shortage of home units Mr. Stout attributed chiefly to the almost complete cessation of building for rental purposes during the six depression years since 1929.

"There has been no apartment house

SUTTON IS VICTOR IN TEXTBOOK ISSUE AT SCHOOL BOARD

Recommendations Adopted in Full; State-Adopted List Is Eliminated From Consideration.

The move to curtail the power of Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta public schools, collapsed definitely yesterday at the regular monthly meeting of the board of education.

The school head emerged apparently stronger than before the fight was launched against him several months ago.

Final victory for the superintendent was recorded when the special textbook committee withdrew, by unanimous consent of the board, a previously filed recommendation that textbooks from the state adopted list be used exclusively in the elementary grades and, on the heels of that action, authorized the purchase of about $30,000 worth of books recommended by the administrative staff.

The anti-Sutton bloc was so completely overwhelmed virtually no opposition was voiced to administration on recommendations in the final rounds on the controversial issues.

Opposition Silent.

Commissioner Arthur H. Scott, leader in the drive to force use of books on the state adopted list, sat in the meeting during the board action, but failed to voice any objection against the procedure. The board also authorized Sutton to appoint committees of teachers to review textbooks and to file recommendations with the board, leaving in Sutton's hands the designation of the committees to study the matter which has been the subject of much controversy.

Commissioner George S. Lowman, eight ward, regarded as one of the anti-Sutton bloc, was balked in a move to have the board adopt a resolution which would have dismissed teachers from the system in the event of marriage when the resolution was tabled. He did succeed in having referred to a special committee a measure which would bar employment of married women teachers if their husbands were able to work. A public hearing was ordered on the latter resolution at Lowman's request and Ernest Brewer, board president, announced he would appoint the committee at a later date.

Insurance Study Planned.

A special committee also will study the legal aspects of a legislative bill requiring that the board supplement group insurance funds for 1,750 school employees with a view of determining whether the board shall pay the $8-

SIX ARE INDICTED FOR DYNAMITING

Five Men and Woman Accused of Bombing Theater and Residence Here.

Six persons, who face possible death penalty, were indicted yesterday by the Fulton county grand jury on felony charges involving the dynamiting of a contractor's home and the Cascade theater on the night of July 25.

The five men and one woman named in the indictments are C. A. Briscoe, Jr., 21, of 410 Broyles street; Fred Harris, 19, of 236 Crumley street; George Bishop, 35, of Kennedy street; Joe Noonan and Edward Houst, 24, of 55 Fair street, accused sweetheart of Marvin Houst, condemned slayer of David Lord and sister of J. W. Sisk, jointly indicted with Houst for the holdup murder.

Two Indictments.

The six are named in two indictments, the first charging Briscoe, Harris, Houst and the Sisk woman with the actual dynamiting of the home of T. C. Wesley, at 27 Fifteenth street, and the second charging Briscoe, Harris, Houst and the Sisk woman with the dynamiting of the Cascade theater.

It was claimed confessions had been obtained from Briscoe and Harris, in that they had been conducting negotiations for the purchase of the property.

"Houston White also owns some of the land," the county official said.

ATLANTA-FLORIDA AUTO RING BROKEN

Arrests Here and Miami Uncover Big Theft Gang Operating Since July 1.

Arrests here and in Miami yesterday morning broke up one of the biggest automobile theft rings ever to operate in the southeast as Atlanta detectives uncovered a complete fictitious dealer setup and equipment for the wipin-out of automobile identification numbers.

Arthur Guest, 31, of 688 Linwood avenue, N. E., was held here on "suspicion of larceny" and Miami, Fla., detectives had under arrest a man booked as Cecil Long, 29. Two stolen automobiles were recovered in the Florida city and two were recovered in Atlanta, according to Detectives A. B. McNaughton and G. F. Barrett, who uncovered the theft ring and are credited by police officials with the smashing of the racket.

The ring has been operating here since July 1, detectives said, and has been responsible for a wave of automobile thefts that at first baffled efforts of the officers to trace.

The officers found in the Linwood avenue home a quantity of punches, drills, saws and an electric motor with flexible cable equipped with an emery wheel for the filing away of serial numbers in motors and bodies.

They also uncovered a number of allegedly fictitious bills of sale on regular printed forms bearing the name of the "Hillard Motor Company, Harry Hillard, president." The West Peachtree address given on the printed forms is a private home, the officers said.

The ring operated by using a bill of sale of the non-existent dealer, driving the cars to Florida and obtaining Florida ownership certificates as a preliminary to offering the vehicles for sale, the detectives said.

Guest, the officers said, has refused to talk, and will neither admit guilt nor deny participation in the numerous thefts credited by the detectives to the ring.

Tri-Power Parley Starts in Paris in Hope of Settling Dispute Between Mussolini and Sessalie.

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland, Aug. 13.—(AP)—France, fearing the League of Nations may fail to settle the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, is taking the utmost precautions to protect its interests in French Somaliland.

Large long-range naval guns have been mounted on islands off the coast from Djibouti, it was learned today. The French cruiser Dumont-Duville will arrive August 18 and remain during the period of expected hostilities.

New airplane hangars are being constructed in large numbers and additional airplanes are en route here from France. Djibouti is being encircled in barbed wire.

The present Senegalese garrison will be reinforced by 1,000 additional troops.

Barring a general rising of Somali tribesmen in sympathy with the Ethiopians, French authorities are confident of holding Somaliland against any comers.

Recognizing the vital importance of Djibouti in the event of a war, France has appointed a new governor general here. He is Sylvester Teris, former governor of Cambodia, a friend of Premier Laval and one of France's ablest colonial administrators.

Premier Mussolini also is conscious of the increasing importance of Djibouti and has appointed a consul general here with a large staff.

Following a recent jolting by Somalia of Italian naval forces on a visit here, French authorities warned Italian Somaliland to refrain from political activity and preserve their neutrality.

Italy continues to flood Massaua with men, airplanes, tanks and artillery. Travelers arriving here from Eritrea report the utmost confusion there among soldiers because of their lack of colonial experience.

Clipper Completes Flight to Midway

MIDWAY ISLAND (By Pan-American Airways)—Aug. 13.—(AP)—

Completing the second stage of its 4,922-mile flight from Alameda, Cal., to Wake Island, the Pan-American Airways' clipper airplane arrived here today eight hours and 52 minutes after leaving Honolulu.

The big four-motored flying boat arrived at 3 p. m. Honolulu time (8:30 p. m. Atlanta time).

Aided by a tail wind on the first part of its 1,235-mile journey over the ocean, the clipper carried its eight-man crew and 3,000 pounds of cargo to Midway in 28 minutes less time than on a previous flight.

Pan American officials said today's time indicated a regular nine-hour schedule will be established for the Honolulu-Midway stretch of the projected California-Orient commercial service.

Judge Chesnut held the Agricultural Adjustment Act constituted a regulation of agricultural production in several states for which purpose Congress has no power to levy a special tax.

SALE OF TOBACCO HOLDING UP WELL

Valdosta, Tifton and Moultrie Report Heavy Offerings.

By The Associated Press.

Continued heavy sales of tobacco were reported yesterday from various Georgia bright leaf markets, after tremendous sales of last year.

The State Department of Agriculture reported sales for last week and the two days of the opening week were nearly 6,000,000 pounds greater than for the entire season of 1935.

Valdosta's tobacco board of trade reported Monday's sales at 765,520 pounds at an average of 19.21. Warehouses there were still crowded with a good grade of leaf which the board said was bringing good prices. Quite a bit of common tobacco also is being offered.

Moultrie reported sales Monday of 643,670 pounds at an average of 22.96. Sales there were the "strongest of the season, considering the quality of tobacco offered," Moultrie reported.

Tifton said Monday's sales were the largest of the season—549,710 pounds at an average of 21.79. Offerings there continued heavy.

Heavy sales were reported from other of the 15 markets in the belt.

HOME MARKETS URGED FOR AMERICAN CROPS

Cummings, Thornton and Wight Named Leaders at Athens Meet.

ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Wheeler McMillen, editor of Country Home magazine, said here today that American farm products should find American markets, and that if the farmers prosper, "no one needs to worry about prosperity for all the people of the country."

McMillen's address was an opening day feature of farm and home week, for which hundreds of Georgia men and women have gathered here. As another part of the first day's program, the Georgia Vegetable Growers' Association in district meeting, discussed methods of advancing Georgia's competition with truck farm states.

Three Leaders Named. Names of three men who will receive certificates in recognition of their service to agricultural development of the state were announced today by Dean Paul W. Chapman, of the College of Agriculture.

Recipients of the recognition awards, which will be made Thursday at special exercises as a feature of farm and home week, will be John J. Cummings, of Dalton; S. L. Thornton, of Hartwell; and J. B. Wight, of Cairo.

Each of the three men selected here excelled in different phases of farming endeavor, Dean Chapman pointed out.

Cummings is one of the "outstanding cattle men of the United States." Thornton "is recognized as one of the leaders in developing a system of soil building and erosion control which authorities say is the most effective ever advanced for his section of the state," and Wight "perhaps more than any other one man has contributed to Georgia's leadership in development of the pecan industry," Dean Chapman said.

"Cummings owns 750 head of Hereford cattle, which is the largest herd of this breed in the United States east of the Mississippi river," Chapman said in announcing the awards. "He is possessor of the world's champion Poland China sow, and the dairy herd which he has recently established carries blood lines of the greatest bull ever developed in the history of the Jersey breed."

Cummings specializes in raising and selling pure-bred Hereford bulls and has averaged selling approximately 200 annually for a number of years.

Three Georgia Farm Leaders Are Named at Athens

Certificates in recognition of their service to the agricultural development of the state are to be presented tomorrow to a trio of outstanding citizens. The upper picture shows the field of clover near Hartwell, developed by S. L. Thornton (center), as a group of neighbors inspect the crop. Below is shown the winners of the awards, left to right, S. L. Thornton, of Hartwell; John J. Cummings, of Dalton; and J. B. Wight, of Cairo, horticulturist. Photos by Associated Press.

Thornton's anti-erosion program is based on 30 years' experience in growing crimson clover "to enrich and hold the soil, to furnish grazing and to provide a cover through the sale of seed," Dean Chapman said. Above-normal yields of other crops reflect soil building value of the clover program.

Thornton is interested in stock raising in addition to general farming. Several years ago he was selected as master farmer in Georgia by the Progressive Farmer in co-operation with the College of Agriculture.

Wight not only has contributed to development of the Georgia pecan industry, but has experimented with fruit trees and conducted a test ground for seeds and plants imported. This has been done in co-operation with the United States Department of Agriculture.

"He brought the tung oil tree to the state," Dean Chapman commented, "introduced the Satsuma; he has introduced and developed a number of the leading varieties of fruits, and has been a leader in every effort concerned with the improvement of farming and beautification of Georgia's homes."

Wight is president of the Georgia Agricultural Society and is past president of the Georgia Horticultural Society and the National Pecan Association.

Awarding of certificates to outstanding Georgia farmers is expected to become an annual feature of farm and home week here.

A welcome was extended the farm and home week visitors by Dr. S. V. Sanford, chancellor of the University System of Georgia.

At the meeting of vegetable growers, speakers discussed latest information on stalked tomatoes, berry growing, successful specialization, mountain varieties of vegetables, seed certification and a vegetable program for Georgia.

George H. Flier, extension horticulturist, explained the position taken by vegetable growers attending the district meeting.

2 CONVICTS LEAVE EMANUEL PRISON

John McNabb, of DeKalb, One of Pair To Escape From Camp.

SWAINSBORO, Ala., Aug. 13.—(AP) Search was under way today for two prisoners at Emanuel county convict camp who escaped during a change of guards Saturday night.

Ben M. Parrish, night guard at the camp, said there had been "mumbblings of discontent" recently over rumors that the camp would be abolished and the prisoners sent to a highway camp near Soperton, but that the talk had quieted down recently.

At the camp, the escaped men were listed as Roscoe Brisson, of Emanuel county, under life sentence for murder, and John McNabb, of DeKalb county, under sentence for burglary.

Parrish had just reached the camp to relieve Ira Dudley, day guard, as the two men leaped over a fence and fled. They were missed shortly afterward.

The prisoners have not been working here recently, while the county studied the advisability of abandoning the camp. A transfer would have meant work under them today for the names similar to those who escaped were in the Emanuel camp. It listed them as Little Boy Brisson, 15, negro, life term, murder, received in the penitentiary system April 10, 1933, from Emanuel county; and John M. McNabb, 34, white, sentenced to 10 years in DeKalb county for burglary and received in the system April 20, 1932.

BOASTS BY KINGFISH QUICKLY CHALLENGED

contrasted sharply with a statement by Senator Glass and Byrd, Virginia democrats, who have differed sharply with the administration on many policies.

They stressed that they would continue to vote their own convictions on legislation but said neither of them had "ever bolted a party nomination"—local, state or national—nor either of them had ever entertained the remotest notion of doing anything of the kind in 1936.

Almost coincident with the disclosure by Long's colleagues of his presidential plans came a warning in New Orleans from Senator Bilbo, democrat, Mississippi, for the Louisiana senator to keep his hands off Mississippi politics.

The six states which Long predicted claimed for him if he ran were Louisiana, Georgia, Texas, Florida, Mississippi and Arkansas. Senators from several of those states joined democratic party officials in predicting otherwise.

HUEY QUILTS ACTIVITY IN MISSISSIPPI ARENA.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(P)—Senator Long, democrat, Louisiana, announced tonight withdrawal of his activity in the Mississippi gubernatorial election because he said, "I had been unable to make the race a Huey Long and share-of-wealth issue."

The announcement was made in a letter Long mailed to the presidents and secretaries of the Share-the-Wealth societies in Mississippi in which he directed them to "take no hand in the Mississippi governor's race no matter what the candidates" adding: "We are sure to be repudiated no matter who wins."

Long had planned to throw the strength of his name behind Paul B. Johnson, but this candidate declined the support.

Can't Win.

The letter, which was headed "we lose if we win," followed:

"To all the share-of-wealth societies in Mississippi:

"Take no hand in the Mississippi governor's race no matter what the candidates are for or against us by either of the candidates."

"We are in the same shape as we were last year when Stephens and Bilbo ran. We lost last year and we would have lost if Stephens had won."

"There is no issue to be drawn by the share-of-wealth following in the race between Johnson and White for governor of Mississippi. We are worse off than we were last year when Bilbo ran against Stephens."

"We are sure to be repudiated no matter who wins as between White and Johnson."

"When Bilbo ran last year he was saying he would be a public enemy. He was calling me a public enemy. Now I know I made a mistake in taking any hand regardless of what Stephens had said. My temper got the better of my judgment. If I had to do it over again, I would remain perfectly quiet."

Says Bilbo Called.

"When Bilbo was trying to get me over the telephone in the last days of his race last year, I declined to answer the telephone. He called me a traitor. I have cursed the day for answering his telephone call after I reached New Orleans and for getting so vicious at Stephens that I actually called him back the next day. It was one of my worst public acts."

"Johnson hasn't called me or asked me for anything and I am under no commitment."

"With Senator Stephens declaring for Johnson, which could not be unsatisfactory to Senator Harrison, and Bilbo out for the multi-millionaire race, I see no reason why I should be in the race. From what now appears, it seems certain either one of the men who win will be found against us if we run in the next year. We will not need them."

"Furthermore, Judge Johnson's declaration for Roosevelt and his policies is something we cannot back up and his statement leaves it clear he does not want us to make any such fight for him."

"Our time to fight a battle for the people of Mississippi will come some day before long, just like it came in other places. There will be no doubt where the next candidate we support stands on share-of-wealth or on Huey P. Long in any other Mississippi race in which we are concerned."

Meanwhile, Senator Bilbo, democrat, Mississippi, in an interview today in New Orleans warned Long to "stay out of Mississippi," declaring Mississippi "will never become a province of Louisiana."

The second primary, which is a runoff election between Johnson former congressman, and Hugh White, wealthy lumberman, will be held August 27. White has the support of Bilbo while Long has denounced White as an opponent of the share-of-wealth program.

Bilbo said Mississippi never would be "a province of Louisiana," or "allow Huey Long to pick its governors, its public officials or dictate its laws or destroy the republic form of government within the state which is guaranteed by the constitution of the United States."

Bilbo said Long was making a "second invasion of Mississippi." He charged the Louisiana "dictator" two years ago "spent money and time for the election" of Governor Sennet Connor. He warned Long that he could not annex Mississippi to Louisiana.

Informed Senator Long said he would be a candidate for president, Bilbo laughed and termed this "a great big joke."

"I am the one man in the United States to whom Long has no respect," Bilbo said. "He has not said one word to me since the day I walked on the floor and now when he sees me coming he goes in the opposite direction."

Bilbo termed Senator Long's versions of plots to "murder" him as "disgusting attempts at cheap publicity." He said if anyone wanted to kill Long they could do so with ease. "Huey takes himself too seriously," Bilbo said.

He said Long could be stopped in the senate, but added "I may suggest a pole cat or a skunk can be killed, but just remember how you smell after the polecat or skunk has been killed."

UNDERPASS PROPERTY WILL BE CONDEMNED

"I do not believe that we will have any trouble over Mr. White's property, but there are several owners of small lots which we need who are balking over the price. As I have said, we do not intend to let a jury fix reasonable prices for the land."

In building the underpass the Highway Department plans to straighten the road beginning at the end of Hemphill avenue. The property sought by the county is that which is needed for the straightening of the road.

J. T. Marshall, Georgia supervising engineer for the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, said several weeks ago that he did not believe the present controversy between the highway board and the federal bureau would hold up the underpass. The government is anxious to complete the construction of the underpass and Mr. Marshall said he expected the release of $120,000 needed for the job would be approved by Charles Sneed, the district engineer, and primary contractor, J. B. McDonald, the director of the federal bureau in Washington.

The new underpass, which will eliminate one of the worst traffic hazards in Fulton county, is a link in the new military highway being constructed by the government to provide the direct route between Fort Benning, Fort McPherson, Kennesaw National park and Fort Oglethorpe.

SIX PERSONS INDICTED ON BOMBING CHARGES

The two men alleged to have confessed also implicated the Sisk woman, charging she drove the car used in the bombing, renting it in the name of Beattie Sawyer. She denied completely yesterday afternoon and announced through her attorney she would plead "not guilty" to the charges in the indictment. She was released under bond of $300, reduced from $1,000.

Officers believe the persons named in the indictments are a gang which has dynamited homes and destroyed signs advertising a brand of beer all over the city.

The confessions said, according to the police, the act of terrorism was performed for a fee of $10 a bombing and $2 per smashed sign.

Bishop is named in the indictments as having "procured and furnished" the others named, and is alleged to have paid them off after commission of the crimes.

No One Injured.

The two men who allegedly confessed are said to have stated they had not yet been paid for the July 25 bombings. No one was injured in either crime. Much of the property being damaged and the damage in the theater, where the bomb was thrown in a washroom, was negligible.

They told officers, it was announced, that they knew nothing of what was involved in the bombing except that Bishop had hired them. He said to have supplied the dynamite used in the excursions of terrorism.

A move by a special committee to abolish the post of supervisor of textbooks, which is held by Miss Burns Jarrard and which the administration opposed, was lost after a lengthy debate.

The board accepted with thanks a report of a special investigating committee, headed by Commissioner Ed S. Cook, third ward, which recommended that the administration make an effort to obtain the voluntary retirement on pension of all employees 70 years old or over; that a 12-month salary basis.

The Cook committee report praised the fiscal structure of Atlanta schools, recommended further study of the curricula, and suggested better supervision of maintenance and operation department employees.

F. D. A. REVERED BILL, SEAT, HASTINGS OFFERS

possible night sessions beginning tomorrow to speed up adjournment, Senator George D. Hastings, Georgia, in a corridor talk with reporters, described the bill as "largely unimportant and loosely drawn."

"It takes fictitious incomes and what at present are fictitious estates," he said.

To bring the bill still more in line with the constitution, Hastings, chairman Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, of the finance committee expects to offer a modified inheritance tax on estates, to take the place of higher taxes on estates.

While republican chiefs promised to co-operate in speeding a final vote, the bill to be passed by the senate tomorrow, right to discuss fully controversial bill, Hastings said.

Senator Long, whose share-the-wealth plan already has met defeat in the senate, is expected to substitute for the administration bill, Democratic leaders said it would go down to defeat again.

Practically Changed.

The bill to be passed tomorrow is much different from that which passed the house, although both would raise about the same amount as the existing income and estate taxes—$250,000,000.

The finance committee schedules would levy higher surtaxes on individual net incomes over $100,000, on corporate net incomes over $50,000, and on the net income of estates over $100,000. They also substitute higher estate taxes for the inheritance levies proposed by the President and adopted by the house; raise existing excess profits taxes but modifying those in the house draft; provide a wider range of deductions for corporations; come levies than approved in the other branch; raise existing capital stock and personal holding company taxes, and give a new tax on intercorporate dividends.

The personal holding company taxes, disclosed for the first time today with publication of the text of the bill, were raised, it was explained, to guard against evasion of the higher individual surtaxes.

Prevent Law's Provisions.

The present law provides a surtax of 30 per cent on the undistributed adjusted net income of personal holding companies up to $100,000, and 40 per cent on the excess over $100,000.

The new provision provides: 20 per cent on all up to $2,000; 30 per cent on the excess between $2,000 and $100,000; 40 per cent on that between $100,000 and $500,000; 50 per cent on that between $500,000 and $1,000,000; 60 per cent on the excess over $1,000,000.

Personal holding companies are defined as those deriving 80 per cent of their income from dividends, interest, capital gains and royalties, and a majority of whose stock is held by not more than five persons, counting members of a family as one person.

Experts said under present law, if such a company does not distribute its income, it pays the maximum 40 per cent penalty tax and the corporation income tax of 13.34 per cent, a total of 53.34 per cent. Under the new law, the present maximum corporate rates of 50 per cent, but still allows a differential of 5.14 per cent, enough to encourage organization of the new provision, the combined maximum holding company tax of 60 per cent and corporation income tax of 13.34 per cent, a total of 73.34 per cent, the maximum individual surtax of 75 per cent.

CONTEMPT CHARGE LOOMING FOR HOPSON

Hopson on the house committee stand details of the building up of Associated Gas and Electric into a mammoth holding company. At one point he said he was indicted on a "constitutional right to privacy," and discounted reports of a million-dollar-a-year profit.

The fireworks started when Joseph McCarthy, the chief investigator, was blocked when he attempted to serve Hopson as he left the committee room, found an elevator door slammed in his face, and rushed to the street only to miss him again.

Policeman Testifies.

Chairman Black, democrat, Alabama, of the senate committee, quickly called police officers to the committee room to testify to what McCarthy's difficulties.

Introduced in evidence was an Associated Press photo showing McCarthy just about to reach Hopson before he was closed off by the latter's aids.

George D. Lambert, a plainclothes officer in the Washington Police Department, testified he and a partner were called to the capitol today by Chairman O'Connor, of the house committee.

He was instructed, he said, to have an elevator waiting for Hopson when he reached the capitol and a taxi waiting when he was ready to go. The instructions, he testified, were given by employees in O'Connor's office.

Lambert denied he had interfered with the serving of the senate subpoena, but said he was instructed to let anyone ride in the elevator with the utility help.

Chairman Black, with apparent enjoyment, then pictured Hopson marching to the committee with O'Connor's aids in front, Hopson's attorneys on each side, and the police in back.

Newspaperman Story.

Paul V. Anderson, a newspaper correspondent, also described the scuffle. He said a capitol policeman had interfered with the committee investigator.

"Do you understand that you were interfering with the service of a senate subpoena?" Anderson said he asked the officer.

"All I know is that I'm following the instructions of my boss," he replied.

Education Advocated as Means Of Reducing Nation's Crime Bill

Hike in the educational standards of the American public to reduce the $12,000,000,000 annual loss attributed to crime and to double the wealth of the nation was advocated yesterday by Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, in submitting the first complete annual report of school activities filed with the board since 1912.

Sutton told the board that if the educational average of the state were raised from the fifth to the eighth grade "I can guarantee and get a better system at this time and the business of the state will be doubled."

The assertion was predicated on a contention that an educated person can produce more than his income is more and that his wants are greater.

"It is estimated that the cost of crime in this state is $12,000,000,000 annually," Sutton said. "Education even at its peak cost only $2,500,000,000. If to let anyone get near Mr. Hopson," the reporter quoted the policeman as replying.

Both Anderson and McCarthy testified the latter attempted to serve the document, but Hopson refused to accept it. McCarthy said Hopson could not be served because Hopson was already under the summons of the house committee.

Hopson told the house committee an intricate tale of the formation of the Associated Gas and Electric system for some 300 operating companies, slowly acquired, with numerous involved financial transactions.

Chairman O'Connor, democrat, New York, who did most of the questioning, stuck persistently to a contention, Hopson agreeing that throughout the operation, McCarthy and his close associate, J. I. Menge, retained ownership of all the voting stock of the company until a default on Class A common stock gave them the privilege of electing two directors of a board of seven.

William Collins, committee counsel, dug into the question of Hopson's ownership of the company through a witness before the senate committee, Hopson or Hopson, and his associates, received $2,500,000 in fees from the operating companies.

Hopson described the witness in question, Shart C. Ross, as formerly a member of the New York state legislative committee's investigation of utilities who "volunteered" to testify before the Black committee.

"His statements are such a mass of misstatement and distortion that I wouldn't attempt to go into them," he said.

The primary question connection with his own service companies and those owned by the holding company system was whether the operating companies received full value for the fees paid and not whether the services were rendered at a profit.

Review of Tax Bill Facing Senate Today

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(P)—

Here is a review of the Finance committee tax bill which the senate will take up tomorrow, showing comparisons with the house bill and existing law.

Individual Income Surtaxes.

Senate bill: 60 per cent on taxable income over $1,000,000 and 15 per cent on the excess over $1,000,000. Present law: 50 per cent on taxable income over $1,000,000, providing flat maximum of 59 per cent on all over that.

House bill: Starts higher levies at $500,000 mark, with rates ranging from 31 per cent on the first taxable $6,000 over $500,000, compared with an existing 30 per cent on the excess over $500,000.

Estate Tax.

Senate bill: 2 per cent on the first taxable $100,000, graduating up to 70 per cent on the excess over $500,000. Exemption reduced from $50,000 to $40,000. Present law ranges from 1 to 60 per cent, the maximum applied to that portion over $100,000.

House bill: Same as present law.

Gift Tax on Donors.

Senate bill: Raises present rates, making equivalent three-quarter of the new estate taxes.

House bill: Same as present law.

Inheritance Tax.

Senate bill: None, as at present. House bill: None, as at present.

Graduated Corporation Income Tax.

Senate bill: 12-12 per cent on net income up to $15,000; 14 per cent on that between $15,000 and $40,000; 15 per cent on that between $40,000 and $100,000; 15-12 per cent on that over $100,000. Exemption for charity donations up to 5 per cent of net income.

House bill: Changes present flat rate of 13.34 per cent to 13-14 per cent on income up to $15,000, and 14-14 per cent on that over $15,000.

Excess Profits.

Senate bill: 6 per cent on corporate profits over 10 per cent and not over 15 per cent, and 12 per cent on profits over 15 per cent.

House bill: Changes present flat 5 per cent on profits over 8 and not over 12 per cent; 10 per cent on profits over 12 and not over 15 per cent; 20 per cent on all over 15 per cent.

Intercorporate Dividends.

Senate bill: Applies corporation income tax to 15 per cent of all received by a corporation from another in the form of dividends.

House bill: Same as present law which permits corporations to deduct all intercorporate dividend income in determining taxable income.

Capital Stock Tax.

Senate bill: Raises present $1 per $100 tax on the adjusted declared value of corporation capital stock to $1.50. Permits corporations to revalue annually for purposes of tax.

House bill: Same as present law. The bill does not permit annual revaluations.

Personal Holding Company Tax.

Senate bill: To guard against evasion of the new individual income taxes, it levies a surtax on the undistributed adjusted net income of such companies as follows: 20 per cent on all up to $2,000; 30 per cent on the excess between $2,000 and $100,000; 40 per cent on that between $100,000 and $500,000 and $1,000,000; 50 per cent on the excess over $1,000,000.

House bill: Same as present law which provides a 30 per cent tax on income up to $100,000 and 40 per cent on that portion over $100,000. Such a company is one which derives its income from dividends, interest, capital gains and royalties and a majority of whose stock is held by five persons, counting as one person members of a family.

THREE-POWER PARLEY LAUNCHED IN PARIS

PARIS, Aug. 13.—(P)—A three-cornered effort to settle the Italo-Ethiopian quarrel without war was ready to start tonight with the arrival of Anthony Eden, Great Britain's minister for League of Nations affairs.

Eden is reported to have brought with him one of the many expected plans to give Premier Mussolini control in effect but not in name over Ethiopia.

A Rome dispatch said Italy's policy at the Paris conference would be one of "no compromise."

A reconciliation of French and British views is the first step in the negotiations, which begin formally Friday when Premier Pierre Laval, of France, Baron Pompeo Aloisi, of Italy, and Eden meet. Eden and Laval will talk tomorrow and Aloisi and Laval Thursday to smooth out the rough edges of their conflicting arguments.

Emperor Haile Selassie, whose throne and country are at stake, has not been invited but will get occasional news through his minister to France, Tecla Hawariat.

The primary question connection with his own service companies and those owned by the holding company system was whether the operating companies received full value for the fees paid and not whether the services were rendered at a profit.

RESTRAINT OF CHIEFTAINS A PROBLEM TO SELASSIE

ADDIS ABABA, Aug. 13.—(P)—

Emperor Haile Selassie, as the end of the rainy season in Ethiopia approached, has been under increasing pressure from his many wild chieftains and their followers.

Always popular, he has gained new stature in the eyes of his subjects because of the extreme dignity and restraint he has evidenced in the face of the fiery actions and attitudes of these leaders.

He has acknowledged the situation in dark but has expressed determination not to surrender to popular hysteria and to do his utmost to work out a peaceful solution of the Italo-Ethiopian crisis.

If war comes, he has promised he will cast aside the robes of statehood and lead his people to war in person, despite the traditional role of his royal ancestors.

His dark hour was made darker today as he laid aside the increasingly weighty robes of his war-throne empire to mourn the death of Wolrore Assalef, the wife of his brother-in-law, the late Emperor Menelik II, following an operation.

From his sorrow, he will turn his eyes toward Paris to see whether Britain and France, to which Ethiopia has turned for aid, will express a friendly and able in his speech to his council of nobles yesterday, are able to convince Italy not to interfere in Ethiopia.

The emperor, however, apparently pins little hope upon the tripartite conversations in Paris to which he was not invited. Does not express any confidence in the efforts of the address that, although peace efforts are being made, the Italian position is not likely to alter in east region and the end of the rainy season (which is the "zero hour" to many Ethiopians) is nearly come.

MORE ITALIAN TROOPS EMBARK FOR ETHIOPIA

ROME, Aug. 13.—(P)—Three more ships laden with troops, war materials and workmen sailed for Italy's east African colonies tonight as the Italian government announced arrangements to embark a delegation to the tripartite conference in Paris.

Well-informed circles did not disguise the fact Italy expects no agreement in Paris to alter her position regarding her military program in East Africa.

"Italian policy regarding East Africa has changed in the slightest," an official spokesman said. "Well-informed circles believe, therefore, that Italy will not change her position."

AAA COTTON PROGRAM DEFENDED BY DAVIS

Group Favoring Unrestricted
Production Assailed in Miss. Address.

STONEVILLE, Miss., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Assailing critics of the federal farm program, Chester C. Davis, agricultural adjustment act administrator, declared today that established principles of American agriculture "will not allow the millions of cotton farmers and the fertility of their soil to be sacrificed upon the altar of five-cent cotton."

Addressing the 16th annual Delta Day program at the experiment station here, Mr. Davis criticized those "who clamor for unrestricted production and resulting ruinous prices for American cotton," and blame the AAA for declining exports.

"Cotton exports," he told the gathering of farmers and businessmen, "must be studied in the light of sustained income to the producer and the maintenance of our producing plant, the farmers themselves, and their farms."

"It is unthinkable either to abandon our exports or to sell out our cotton farmers and the fertility of our soil," he said, "for a 5 or 6-cent price to maintain the mockery of a valueless export market."

If it came to "either extreme," Mr. Davis said, "I would give up the whole of our cotton export and see every exporter padlock his doors before I would sell out the producer and his farm." He said he wanted the "value" of the export business maintained.

N. Y. $97,000,000 'In Red'
ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 13.—(AP)—New York state is over $97,000,000 "in the red," it was revealed at the office of the state comptroller today that on June 30, last, when the fiscal year of 1934 ended, the deficit was $97,020,788.21. The deficit, it was stated, was due almost entirely to a falling off in revenues.

Roosevelt Decision on Road Funds Expected This Week by Observers

No Intimation Is Given as to Position He Will Take, But MacDonald Is Hopeful Georgia Impasse
May Be Broken.

BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—President Roosevelt is now expected to make a decision this week on whether he is to personally intervene in the Georgia highway fund controversy or leave the problem to the adjustment of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads.

While there is no intimation of what the chief executive's attitude may be, it does seem safe to predict that if he should decide to wash his hands of the matter, leaving the agricultural department a free rein to act as it sees fit, the $10,000,000 Georgia federal road fund will be spent through the individual counties and municipalities over the heads of the State Highway Board in keeping with original plans drawn by Messrs. Wallace and MacDonald when the impasse first developed.

Wallace Plan.
Supporting this view, it was learned today, for example, steps already have been taken by the Department of Agriculture for obtaining a separate allocation of works relief funds with which to carry on the Wallace plan of direct dealing with the counties and municipalities.

The department is reported to have prepared an application for an initial allotment of $10,000,000 for the Georgia road program. All of this was done some weeks ago before the controversy was brought to the attention of the President by the Georgia congressional delegation, who asked the President to intervene. Since then action on the application has been deferred pending a decision by the President as to whether he personally should step into the fight.

Although Georgia already has been allotted its share of the $400,000,000 federal highway funds, if the Wallace plan is adopted it will be necessary to obtain a separate allocation of work relief money in order to circumvent provisions of the appropriation act relating to dealings with state highway boards. Such sums thus allocated from the four billion-dollar works relief fund would be charged against the regular highway allotment otherwise going to Georgia.

MacDonald Hopeful.
Authority for the statement that the President is now expected to make a decision this week came from several private sources today, though no official comment was available from any quarter. Mr. MacDonald only would

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—New Deal power policies were expected to be made today during the campaign issue today during a five-hour house republican filibuster against holding the World Power Conference in the United States next year.

The bill finally was sent to the senate by a 234-to-92 vote.

With the active help of Representatives Rogers, republican, Massachusetts, and Christianson, republican, Minnesota, Republican Leader Snell used every parliamentary wile to delay a final ballot to invite the conference here and supply $75,000 for expenses.

"The only reason I can see for calling this conference," said Snell, "is to bring together a bunch of long-haired socialists who advocate government ownership of power companies."

"That may be a campaign issue next year, and if it is we don't need any help from a lot of foreigners to help us settle it."

Chairman McReynolds, democrat, Tennessee, of the foreign affairs committee, who sponsored the legislation, read a statement from Secretary Hull that the power conference was of a technical nature.

"That's the best news I've heard in months," said Gayman.

The stay of execution was granted to give relatives and friends of the men more time to present pleas for clemency.

Gayman and Hamilton pleaded guilty to the slaying Christmas eve, 1933, of Arthur Cashion, filling station operator.

Barbara, Unhurt in Auto Mishap, Shows Little Interest in 'Estate'

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The former Barbara Hutton, whose divorced husband, Prince Alexis Mdivani, was killed August 1 in an automobile accident, emerged unscathed from one today herself.

An automobile occupied by Barbara and her husband, Count Count von Haugwitz-Reventlow, collided with another shortly after the couple set out for Paris. Both machines were slightly damaged but no one was injured.

Barbara and her husband left his Danish country estate, where she had lived her first visit, for Paris, where Barbara will meet brothers and sisters of the late Prince Alexis. It was understood they would decide upon division of the estate left by the prince.

HUGE ESTATE INTACT,

GERONA, Spain, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Jose Maria Sert, painter and brother-in-law of the late Prince Alexis Mdivani, said today that the prince's fortune, variously estimated at from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000, was entirely intact.

(A report yesterday from Denmark, where Mdivani's former wife, Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow, was visiting, estimated the prince's fortune at $2,000,000. Count Haugwitz-Reventlow disclosed his wife and the prince's two brothers and two sisters were each bequeathed one-fifth of the estate.)

"Reports that the prince lost his fortune are false," said Sert. "When he died, the prince left no debts or mortgages on his property."

"I know of no extravagant expenses made by him which would permit the belief there was any decrease in the fortune at $2,000,000. Count Haugwitz-Reventlow had there is nothing to indicate any losses."

"Regarding his will, that is a very private matter and I prefer not to discuss it."

Sert said he soon would take his wife, the sister of Prince Mdivani, to Switzerland for a long rest since she was deeply affected by her brother's sudden death in an automobile accident August 1.

Cotton Picking Refusal To Cost Relief Rating

Able-bodied persons on federal relief rolls who refuse to pick cotton will be dropped from the rolls and lose their eligibility for future jobs with the Works Progress Administration, it was announced yesterday.

Last year 5,000 persons were sent into the cotton fields of Georgia during the picking season. A number of persons who refused to do the work and were dropped from the rolls. The same rule is in force this year, according to announcement of Miss Gay B. Shepperson, state administrator of the WPA.

District administrators throughout Georgia have been instructed to encourage all able-bodied persons to accept this work where it is available. Reports that a number of unemployed persons in Screens county had declined this work have not been made to her office, Miss Shepperson said. District administrators, she said, have been instructed to act in these cases without reporting to her.

PEANUT STABILIZATION PROPOSAL IS STUDIED

Recommendation of Growers
Taken Under Adversive
by AAA Body.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The AAA announced today an advisory committee of peanut growers had recommended a plan designed to stabilize prices of the 1935 peanut crop by diverting to oil any surplus which would not be absorbed in the regular channels of trade at "reasonable" prices.

The recommendations, it was said, have been taken under advisement in working out a program.

The proposed plan, said to be similar to the diversion plan followed last year, would be supplementary to a production adjustment program for peanuts. The AAA would receive payments on peanuts used for the manufacture of peanut oil.

These payments, the AAA said, would be at rates tending to make up the difference between the value of peanuts for oil and the specified price for peanuts which is desired to establish. In this way, it was said, the payments would enable oil millers to offer established prices to growers, thus absorbing any surplus which the peanut trade cannot absorb at these prices.

The advisory committee was said to have recommended that a production adjustment program for 1935 and subsequent years be prepared and offered to growers.

FLORIDA HEARING SET ON TRAFFIC RATE CUT

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Aug. 13.—(AP)—The State Railroad Commission today set Thursday for hearing an application of Central Truck Lines, Inc., for a reduction of approximately 15 cents in its interstate rates on traffic moving between Georgia and Florida points.

A similar reduction on all rail and truck transportation in the state was recently ordered by the commission. It will become effective Thursday.

'MIND YOUR BUSINESS,' NAZI TELLS AMERICANS

Gov. Curley, of Massachusetts,
Defends Solons' Attack on Persecution.

BOSTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Baron Kurt von Toppelkirch, German consul general, tonight politely advised Massachusetts' legislative protesters against German religious persecution to mind their own business, only to be told by Governor James M. Curley they had expressed the "secret opinion" of most Americans.

Von Toppelkirch had written to Everett Saltonstall, speaker of the house of representatives, that yesterday's adoption by the house of a resolution protesting racial and religious persecution in Germany was "unwarranted and unpardonable interference with the domestic matters of my country."

He sent a copy to the Governor and Curley was quick to respond.

"Personally, I do not find myself in accord with you in your views with reference to the action as taken by the general court (legislature) of Massachusetts," retorted the Governor, "believing as I do that the protest is timely and represents an honest and open expression of the secret opinion of the Americans generally."

Massachusetts from the beginning of our government has been regarded as one place in the world in which the public could assemble and give honest expression to what they thought. Curley was quick to respond.

"In my opinion the adoption of the resolution may serve a dual purpose. First, in ending persecution and oppression and secondly, in emphasizing in no uncertain terms, that the resolution may serve a dual purpose. It has been followed during the past year by the Nazi government is abhorrent to right-thinking women and men of the world over and not in keeping with the spirit of the times and must inevitably work greater injury to its proponents than to those against whom the persecution and oppression is directed."

At the same time Saltonstall transmitted a reply to the consul's protest in which he acknowledged the letter but differed "from your interpretation of the action" taken by the legislature.

BERLIN, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Nazi chiefing pondered tonight what to do with the "reactionary" steel helmet veterans' organization and its leader, Franz Seldte, minister of labor.

Seldte, informed circles understood, is willing to have such formations as left steel helmet groups merge into the Kyffhäuserbund Veterans' Society, whose leader, Colonel Wilhelm Reinhard, consistently has taken the attitude that veterans must stand squarely behind Hitler and the Nazi movement.

Reinhard, however, declined to take certain steel helmet men into his organization because they were members of Seldte's organization.

There was little doubt of final dissolution either by Seldte or government decree of the once proud "steel helmet."

ATLANTA, GA., AUGUST 14, 1935.

ALLEGED BOMBERS ARRESTED

The arrest of a gang of alleged bomb throwers, charged with the dynamiting of a number of Atlanta residence and business houses, should be followed by quick trials and, if the accused are found guilty, they should be given the limit of the law.

It is charged that this gang, members of the city's new criminal underworld, have ridden through the streets of Atlanta tossing home-made bombs into residences while the inmates were asleep and into business houses in which the employees were at work.

It is reported that members of the gang have confessed they have committed these outrages for pay and at the instruction of "higher-ups" ready to finance depredations involving imminent threat to the lives of innocent persons.

Atlanta has never had a more outrageous affront to peace and order, and not only those guilty of throwing the bombs but those who instigated the crimes should be made to realize that this type of criminal activity when attempted here will bring swift and certain punishment.

The arrest of this gang of dynamiters shows what can be done in law enforcement and in bringing to justice those who endanger the lives and property of the public.

In tracking down and putting behind the bars this gang of bomb throwers, the police department has rendered excellent service—a standard which, if sustained in the trailing of criminals of all types, will soon exterminate Atlanta's underworld.

What has been done in the case of the bomb outrages can also be done in breaking up the gangs who are robbing and looting in every section of the city.

Atlanta wants no such reign of terror from bombings as has been suffered by other American cities, and the police department is due praise for its efficient work in putting behind the bars the gang charged with the systematic campaign of dynamiting from which the city has recently suffered.

THE SOUTHERN'S NEW SCHEDULE

The Southern's new 19-hour schedule between Atlanta and New York is an encouraging indication that the railroad of the south are awakening to the fact that modern travel requirements, whatever the method of transportation, put a premium on speed, with its resultant saving of time to businessmen and tourists.

Under the new schedule an Atlanta businessman can spend more than half of the day in his office here, reaching New York by rail the next morning early enough to have practically the entire day at his disposal.

The train will be air-conditioned throughout, with all modern improvements for the comfort of passengers, and the element of safety will not be affected by the increased speed, since the roadbed is double-tracked for the entire distance and equipped with complete blocking systems.

While the new schedule falls short of the service rendered by the high-speed, Diesel-motored trains that have proven so successful in the west, it is a step in the direction that must be followed by the railroads if they are to success-

WARREN HEADS SOUTHERN BELL

The selection of James E. Warren as president of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company is a merited recognition of a long and efficient service.

The Southern Bell plays a vital part in the life of the south, not only because of the public service it renders, but because of the thousands of investors who have placed their savings in its stock. Millions of dollars of its securities are held in trust funds, bequests and endowment funds of educational and eleemosynary institutions. Thousands of widows and orphans throughout the south look to it for the income to supply their daily needs.

It is a source of gratification that a man of proven ability and broadness of vision should be placed at the head of such an institution.

Mr. Warren's career with the Southern Bell, starting 35 years ago in a minor position, has been marked by steady progress, during which he has served in practically every branch of the wide-spreading organization. Coming to Atlanta in 1930 as vice president, his selection as president is a well-merited promotion for an able and veteran employee.

Under his guidance it is certain that the Southern Bell will continue as an ably conducted public utility and a vitally important factor in the economic structure of the south.

GEORGIA LOOKS UP!

Coincident announcements of a large increase in the price paid for the Georgia tobacco crop and of an increase in retail sales at the Atlanta federal reserve district that puts the district in a tie with the San Francisco district for the greatest increase registered by any of the 12 districts, reflect the spectacular improvement in economic conditions in Georgia since the launching of the federal recovery program.

In 1932 the tobacco growers of Georgia received only $1,267,000 for a crop totaling 12,171,000 pounds. The growers have already received this year $8,516,000 for the 39,520,000 pounds of leaf sold during the first two weeks of the market, with the prospect that the unsold part of the 1935 crop, estimated at 15,000,000 pounds, will bring an additional $3,500,000.

The reserve bank statement reveals that during July retail sales increased in the Atlanta and San Francisco districts led the nation with an 18 per cent growth as against a 14 per cent increase for the entire country. For the first seven months of this year the aggregate sales in the Atlanta district have registered a 3 per cent increase over 1934, while the New York district showed only a 2 per cent gain, Boston 1 per cent and Philadelphia no gain.

Every other line of agriculture in Georgia will bring increased returns this year to the growers. The peach industry, apparently on its last legs a few years ago, brought returns this year comparable to those received during the boom period, while the producers of watermelons have also experienced profitable returns.

The agricultural interests of Georgia probably no state in the Union have, as a whole, been more greatly benefited by the New Deal than have those of Georgia and, as a result, our farmers are more generally out of debt than has been the case in many years.

The improvement of the condition of the farmers is reflected in the increase in retail sales in the cities and smaller incorporated communities—an improvement that is certain to show further progress when the major cash crops are marketed in the fall.

At the height of the fresh fruit season a trainload of FERA prunes arrives in New England. The whole market of G. O. P. gains in Rhode Island is therefore clarified.

"A scheme is afoot to find places for idle jazz bands in various sections of the country." Abandoned farms are our thought.

An alarm which sounds the instant a prisoner saws the bars has been invented. Later types will set off rockets at the approach of a parole board.

It's hard to know what to depend on any more, with Gibraltar falling apart and Cambridge (Mass.) reporting a $10,000 fire in an asbestos warehouse.

Congress casts a lugubrious eye on plans for a doughnut-shaped five-mile piece. Come, come, men—one must look at the coin, not the hole.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Republican camp gossip has it that Mr. Hoover will be asked at a New York board meeting this week to declare his 1936 intentions.

At least, some of the republican marionette men whose names do not often appear in newspapers have decided to grasp this opportunity to request a public statement. They feel the party has a right to know. They may ask, all right, but the chances are they will not receive a satisfactory answer.

Party thinkers here are convinced that Mr. Hoover will continue to put himself diplomatically with speeches and statements. They realize it is only natural for any man to seek vindication by thus politely erecting conspicuous lightning rods. But (and there is virtual unanimity among republican authorities about this) there is hardly a chance in four billion that the lightning will accept Mr. Hoover's invitation.

THUMBS DOWN Another choice political morsel is the publicity-shy eastern ringmasters have decided, in consultation, that neither Mr. Hoover nor Senator Borah will do. They are looking over some of the other candidates closely but have not made up their minds. Their opinions will be worth something when they do, because they usually control the large state delegations at the conventions.

For a time they liked Representative Wadsworth, but he is supposed to have told them he will not be a candidate.

CORRESPONDENCE Even Robert Lucas was surprised when Senator Borah ran first in his poll. The explanation of it is that Borah has been secretly building up correspondence contacts with Young Republicans out through the country for more than a year. You may be sure that his votes came from them and not from the county chairman and city leaders who were polled. In fact, party leaders may awaken some day soon to find that Mr. Borah has established himself as the leader of the Young Republican movement.

It is suspected that his candidacy is designed to head off the Hoover forces (and Hillies) and that he will wait until the convention to swing his support to some one so much like Senator Vandenberg as to be Vandenberg himself.

CONSTITUTION Another explanation of Borah's wide appeal is that he can become sincerely vituperative about the constitution. It has always been his favorite subject. Also, he is the shrewdest of all political publicity strategists. He knows how to make the headlines.

What is helping him most now is that all the republican wise men agree that the constitution should be the issue. It is the one good issue on which east and west can unite.

FORGETFULNESS The only secret which democratic senators have managed to keep lately is the one about the row over the anti-lynching bill. That is, no one who attended has disclosed that it was. But as soon as the doors of the gathering were closed, the question was raised. One senator from the midwest and another from a border state spoke on it. They demanded that the bill be included in the program of legislation to be enacted before the end of the session.

This provoked sparkling rejoinders not only from Senator Smith, of South Carolina, but from Floor Leader Robinson, of Arkansas. To put it mildly, they saw no reason for tearing the party apart over this issue on the senate floor when it was obvious that the bill could not be passed. The debate was exceedingly bitter. Perhaps that is why both sides decided to forget about the subject.

RESENTMENT Non-partisan tax technicians associated with the senate finance committee are calling the latest version of the tax bill an atrocity. They do not mean from a political or revenue standpoint but strictly on technical grounds. For instance, they consider the new estates tax proposal dangerous, if not unworkable.

The official off-the-record explanation why the democratic committee members voted for a program desired only by Senator La Follette is that they were angry at Treasury Secretary Morgenthau. He left them in the dark about what the administration wanted.

NOTES A member of the Roosevelt family now says the President will go to Hyde Park for the month of September and start the western trip in October.

The basic form in which the bonus will be enacted next spring is provided in the Steiwer-Byrnes bill recently introduced in the senate. It is non-inflationary.

White House insiders say the President is going to Hyde Park this week-end for a few conferences, as well as relaxation.

When a prominent republican leader here was asked to comment about the Hoover statement last Monday, he replied: "Don't quote me, but every Hoover statement has the same effect on me as rain in the fourth inning."

Health Talk

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

Blindly following the lead of the Journal of the American Medical Association which is used to promote the editor and his friends, many unscrupulous doctors have taken it as their duty to electro-coagulate (diathermy) of the tonsils leaves too much scar which is likely to cover up infection and cause trouble in future.

Some of these things may have happened in certain cases. Unfortunately many throat specialists have attempted to employ this method without having received proper clinical instruction. They have used the diathermy in a haphazard way and inevitably their work has been bungled. It is hardly fair to condemn a method because amateurs have done harm with it. A well-known medical journal was and is clearly prejudiced upon this question. The brilliant editor, himself without knowledge or experience to speak of, undertakes to advise the public and to lead the organized profession in the early days of diathermy. I was advocating it to my readers, and that was the loud speaker's cue to condemn it.

That is the danger of the "loud speaker" who has his attitude suddenly, you see, so the dumb doctors in the sticks, inarticulate in the oligarchy, still think the newfangled method is the "dangerous" one. I don't think the "loud speaker" should get all the tonsils or "cause dense scar which covers over the focus of infection."

I can assure readers that the diathermy method of extirpating tonsils is not so dangerous as it is made to appear by the "loud speaker." I'll produce a case of vicious scar formation following standard surgical removal of tonsils for every case of tonsillitis that has been cured by following electro-coagulation or diathermy extirpation of the tonsils. For that matter, I'll undertake to produce official reports of fatalities following removal of tonsils by the diathermy method. I'll produce a case of every case of even unsatisfactory results from diathermy—all from the practice of good reputable specialists.

I ask no pardon for dwelling on the scandalously high mortality of surgical tonsillectomy in the hands of the best physicians, surgeons or specialists in the country. We are yet to hear of a fatality from diathermy extirpation of the tonsils.

Remember, I warn you against the amateurs and the bunglers who purport to use the modern method. Most of them are more or less shady, and in the course of the standard surgical extirpation of the tonsils, but some of them are honest and thorough specialists of the best standing. Here I approve and commend the "loud speaker" who uses it. If I know of a physician in your vicinity who is competent I am always glad to name him, by private letter. But so many good doctors now use diathermy for extirpation of tonsils and adenoids that I have given up trying to keep a list of them all. I feel that diathermy is a "dangerous" method, not the "loud speaker" who has his attitude suddenly, you see, so the dumb doctors in the sticks, inarticulate in the oligarchy, still think the newfangled method is the "dangerous" one. I don't think the "loud speaker" should get all the tonsils or "cause dense scar which covers over the focus of infection."

Scientists Wouldn't Believe in Radium's Power If They Couldn't Believe Without Feeling It

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

There are many unhappy people who envy the white-haired priest and the simple saints who find serene contentment in their faith. One of these unhappy people will say: "I would give anything on earth for such peace of mind, but there is nothing in religion for me. I can't feel anything."

He is inviting discontent by expecting too much of himself. There was another man, named Thomas, who could not believe unless he could feel the pierced hands and the wounded side. If all were like him, none could believe anything that is beyond the reach of the physical senses.

The perception of spiritual truths requires spiritual feeling. And feeling does not depend upon the cause, but rather upon the individual's capacity for feeling.

Are you capable of a great passion? One man who falls in love is exalted and ennobled. His passion is like a consuming fever that gives him no rest. He cannot eat or sleep. All other matters seem unimportant. Wealth, reputation, honor, even life itself seems worthless without his love. He does and dares everything to win.

But the capacity for such a passion is rare. The ordinary lover "keeps his head" and considers the effect of marriage on his career. He doesn't feel much because he isn't capable of it.

Some people are capable of a great hatred that dominates their lives for years, and some are capable of a passionate patriotism that causes them to sacrifice everything for their country.

Are you one of these? If not—if you are not emotional or passionate and no feeling masters you—why expect to feel your religion?

The one who cries "Eureka!" when he discovers a new truth may shout "Hallelujah!" when he discovers God.

But those who feel little must base their faith on intellectual conviction and faith with that foundation affords a more lasting peace than any belief that rests on emotion.

You can't feel the power that holds the earth secure in space, but reason tells you the power exists, infinite and eternal, and intellectual conviction gives you the faith that prevents all anxiety.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

He was merely another hitch-hiker,
Thumbing his way along;
Just traveling on, from his
Strolling life's road with a song.He grinned as he stood by the highway,
I couldn't resist his plea,
I drove him miles, he paid with his smiles,
Forever indebted I'll be.A girl's screams rent the early morning air,
They could be heard for blocks,
Through the open windows of the second floor of a downtown building a man dressed in white could be seen bending over, working at something. It was from the agonized cries emanated. They told of torture, fear-inspiring and unendurable.

Below the windows a 20-foot sign bore the legend, "Faintest Dentistry."

Judging Points
On New Opera Stars.

I once knew a retired capitalist. An old man, childless and a widower.

His chief bid for public attention was as a patron of the opera. He was a liberal subscriber, a permanent box holder and enjoyed the late afternoon operatic affairs in all their ramifications.

His home was not in New York, but each winter he spent many weeks in the big city and attended many performances at the Metropolitan.

After each visit to Gotham his friends in his home city pined him with more and more questions about new productions and new personalities, new conductors and new singers.

The individuals he talked about were the new women stars. He told their names and spoke of hearing them sing in such-and-such operas.

Then he would ask me, "How is so-and-so?" naming one or other of the new sopranos or contraltos of whom he spoke. His reply was invariably about like this: "Oh, a magnificent creature. Tall, stately blonde. Splendid figure. Gloriously beautiful. I had supper with her."

He never mentioned the ladies' voices.

Twas a Famous Victory
The Battle of Blenheim was fought in 1704. "Twas a famous victory," you'll find it remembered because of a poem by Robert Southey, British poet laureate, a poem which President Roosevelt recently gave renewed immortality by quoting it in an hour of defeat.

At Blenheim, Bavarian village on the Danube, English, Prussians, Dutch and Danish under the Duke of Marlborough, the prototype of John Bull, defeated French and Bavarians in total of 62,000 men were killed, but when a generation later, young Peterkin crawled upon old Kaspar's lap and asked him to tell him all about it, Southey wrote in satirical commentary on all battles:

"It was the English," Kaspar cried, "Who put the French to rout; But what they fought each other for I could not well make out; But everybody said, 'quoth he, 'That 'twas a famous victory.'"

The last verse is:

"And everybody praised the duke, 'Who this great fight did win,' 'Quoth little Peterkin, 'Why, that I cannot tell,' said he, 'But 'twas a famous victory.'"

Anne Oakley was born in 1886 in Woodland, Ohio, destined to become the world's most famous markswoman. She won rifle matches in competition with men before she was 16, and when 19, in a national match, one day, broke 4,772 out of 5,000 glass balls thrown away from three traps. (She was firing at 15 yards' rise.) Typical Anne Oakley feat: Flung a dime held between a man's thumb and forefinger at 30 feet without injuring him—except his nerves.

HOLLYWOOD

IN PERSON

By MOLLIE MERRICK.

(Copyright, 1935, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 13.—Despite all the talk about the failure of costume pictures, Hollywood goes right on planning for more.

Censorship did more to throw the screen into costume than any other factor. And with our entry into the cycle of elegance—this grand opera cycle—Shakespearean yoke can be called nothing else—Hollywood violates every rule it has ever laid down for itself about what is box office and what is play.

The play-down on sex gave rise to the plot of humor. Grave faced, moon-eyed ladies no longer set scenes for tense gentlemen while the designers go gray figuring out just how to get a lady's gown to show the heroine and still get it to hold on to her shoulders even with the aid of adhesive tape. In "Hell's Angels," a picture of a lady's gown is a big problem and Jean Harlow was the little lady who carried the minimum of yardage and displayed the maximum of torso.

Came the dawn—and clean pictures. And back came that very costume picture which producers have labeled a "final failure" since the first one was made. "Birth of a Nation" ("King of Kings," "Ten Commandments")—you could go on and on with the list of these pictures. Each one the producers loudly shouted it was the last; they roared there would never be another. "Ben Hur" cost four million dollars to make and they only got back a measly eight million in profit. Of course, the costume picture doesn't pay!

In those days the movies didn't consider that sum such a profit; they were accustomed to gold-rush money. Dashed little men who had sewed furs in dark cellars one year were building vast homes and chartering yachts a few years later. Of course they wanted more than that from the ben that laid their golden eggs.

But, Cecil de Mille went right on making costume pictures during all the years they were considered failures. And his percentage of profit, if you looked into it, is on the fat side, and how!

So four Shakespearean plays which Warner intended making, to follow "A Midsummer Night's Dream," come well under the heading of "The Anatomy of Adversity" is another in this class of pictures.

"Mutiny on the Bounty" isn't precisely what the chic man wears in 1935. And you wouldn't look to "Marie Antoinette" or "Captain Blood" to give you inspirations for your fall wardrobe. "The Crusades" will thrill you with its medieval beauty of costume, but you won't dash out to get a "Crusades" costume. Look at even if you're the gigolo type who must do just what the handsome actors of Hollywood are doing.

All of which gives us a pretty good idea of what rather a group of entertainment makers may talk when they get around to discussing their idea of what the profit sheets should be. They'll try to give you inspirations for your fall wardrobe. "The Crusades" will thrill you with its medieval beauty of costume, but you won't dash out to get a "Crusades" costume. Look at even if you're the gigolo type who must do just what the handsome actors of Hollywood are doing.

They must be content with normal profits and be satisfied to get rich a little more slowly than they did in the old Arabian Nights days of movie making, when every picture was a bottle-geni and produced, at a mere slap of the hands, an Aladdin's garden of delights for the bewildered little men who started it all.

That's the Telling 'Em.

GRAND JURY CONFERS WITH JOHN A. BOYKIN

Solicitor-General Called Before Body in Connection With County Probe.

Legal advice of Solicitor-General John A. Boykin was sought yesterday by the grand jury in connection with its investigation of county affairs.

Boykin was before the body for 45 minutes following the regular session of the jury during which indictments were returned on a number of charges.

George W. McCarthy, foreman of the jury, said the investigation will be taken up again at the meeting Friday and special consideration will be given the probe at the session next Tuesday, the day following the called meeting of the County Board of Commissioners.

It was not known on what points of law the jury wished to be informed but Boykin consulted law books on at least one occasion.

It was understood that new information has been furnished the grand jury since it made its special recommendations recommending that 50 county employees be discharged and that the expenditures of the county be drastically reduced to balance the budget.

No witnesses, with the exception of Boykin, were called before the investigating body yesterday in connection with the probe. It was reported that the questions concerning points of law were believed to have great significance as to the future course of action by the grand jury. It was known, however, what direction that course of action will take, in case no action is taken by the county commissioners Monday.

A special meeting of the commission has been called by the chairman, Dr. C. B. Adams, on Monday and the proceedings which severely criticized the majority faction of the commission for its tactics in handling county business are scheduled for consideration.

Johnson Recovering. Commissioner Edwin F. Johnson, leader of the majority faction, is convalescing from a major operation at his summer home at Sea Island, is almost certain to be present at the Monday meeting. It was said he intends attending if his health will possibly permit.

Because of his absence at the last regular commission meeting, votes were deadlocked and no business concerning the probe could be transacted. The investigation was brought on by the charges of Commissioner George F. Longino, leader of the minority faction. He charged that the county will be bankrupt in four years if the "orgs" of spending the public's money is not stopped.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS TO SEEK ECONOMY

Georgia Club Names Delegation to Convention at Milwaukee.

Marvin O'Neal Jr., of Savannah, vice president of the Young Democratic Clubs of Georgia, stated here yesterday he would introduce a resolution at Milwaukee demanding an end to the excessive emergency expenditures of the federal government.

"I have accepted an appointment," Mr. O'Neal stated, "as a delegate to the national convention of the Young Democratic Clubs of America, to be held in Milwaukee on August 23 and 24."

"In addition to supporting the resolution which the Georgia delegation is authorized to support, I intend to demand that the Young Democrats of America call upon our President for a definite statement that after the present emergency expenditure of $1,800,000,000 is expended he will veto any further appropriations in excess of normal federal tax revenues."

"In other words I insist that the budget be balanced. Such an assurance will greatly aid national recovery and put an end to uncertainty and chaos."

The executive committee of the Young Democrats yesterday named delegates to the national convention and instructed them to see that their organization obtains a stronger voice in the affairs of the party.

Richard J. Reynolds Jr., of Atlanta, said that the delegates also were instructed to urge the national democratic administration to "show reasonable and just recognition to Young Democrats in patronage matters."

The national convention will be held August 23 and 24. The Georgia delegates follow:

Red Rock To Distribute Sterling Beer, Ale

SOUTHERNERS DEMAND COTTON LOAN ACTION

Administration Pressed for Announcement on Continuance of Policy.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(P)—Southern cotton senators today continued to press the administration for an early announcement on continuance of 12-cent-a-pound loans on cotton.

Chairman Smith, of the senate agriculture committee, after a conference with President Roosevelt, said it was his "personal opinion" that an announcement would be forthcoming within the next few days.

"I told the President there was absolute imperative for continuance of the 12-cent loans," Smith declared. "It is my personal opinion he will make some announcement within the next few days."

The veteran senator discounted reports from New Orleans that the government was withholding action on continuance of the loans pending possible market developments.

"There is nothing to that," Smith said. "If announcement of the loan is withheld and cotton drops to nine cents a pound, it will be too bad."

The South Carolinian also took up with the President his proposal to establish a $500,000 corporation to insure foreign credit transactions to stimulate export trade.

"The President said he was very much interested in the proposition and I think I am safe in saying that he is in favor of such a plan," Smith asserted.

Under the Smith proposal, foreign credit transactions would be insured similar to foreign trade shipments during the World War under the war risk insurance plan.

U. S. WILL NOT COMPETE WITH PRONS, SAYS DAVIS. STONEVILLE, Miss., Aug. 13.—(UP)—The United States will abandon all its cotton exports rather than let our farmers go into open competition with Brazilian beans or Sudanese sheeps, Chester C. Davis, AAA administrator, said today.

It was the New Deal's answer to the cotton trade—the merchants, brokers and shippers who charge the government's 12-cent-a-pound loans to farmers have pegged the price of American cotton so far above the world market price foreigners are refusing to buy from us.

"I would give up the last bale of our exports and see every exporter padlock his doors before I would sell out the farmer," he said.

Let Brazil have the exports, Davis said in effect. "If our farmers have to go into ruinous competition" that would put them in the same economic order as Brazilian farmers.

The cotton trade fears other nations, principally Brazil, are taking the bait of the AAA cotton business permanently.

Davis said Brazil began to increase cotton production in 1931, before the AAA was created, stimulated by a devaluation in Brazilian money and a depression in coffee prices.

Choosing a "delta day" celebration in north Mississippi for a battle ground, the head of the federal crop control program said the 12-cent loans and "pump-up" campaigns had little to do with loss of exports. Tariffs, harvests and quotas were more to blame, and they have existed a long time, he said.

German representatives have pleaded with me for American cotton at our own prices. They told us, though, they have no exchange to pay us unless they could sell us something in return. We refused to deal with them. The loss of our German market alone accounted for 35 per cent of the drop in cotton exports last season.

Two things concern the New Deal, he said, sustaining farmers' income and conserving the soil. The purpose of loans was to aid farmers in marketing the crop orderly, and not to fix prices, he said.

Solberg Delays Hop. HORNAPFORD, Ireland, Aug. 13.—(P)—Thor Solberg, flying his "Lief Erikson" by easy stages from America to Norway, was unable to lift the heavily loaded plane from the ground here today to start the last lap of his flight. He will make another attempt to take off for Bergen tomorrow.

Blue Derbies, Yellow Vests, Plaids Are Okayed for Well-Dressed Man. NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(P)—A well-dressed man this fall can wear a blue derby. He can flaunt beneath his dinner coat a canary yellow "fun vest," or go the office in a suit with a six-inch "window pane plaid."

He can drink champagne in a special champagne coat and choose its color from 15 shades. He can get married in a midnight blue cutaway with blue striped trousers and a blue high hat, and sail to Bermuda in an old rose shirt and brown shoes with tan buttoned tops.

There are, in fact, no limits for the well-dressed man this fall, according to a stylist (Ray Trefelort) who has a left-wing urge for color.

Gay checked trousers may be worn at the cocktail hour, and a striped bow tie with a coat of more sedate hue. A man can, if he likes, call this a "cocktail suit," place a flower in his lapel, slip on a derby and add filip to the whole by a walking stick.

He can entertain friends in a velvet "host suit" of a jewel shade, such as garnet or jade green, while his wife swishes about in a hostess gown.

He no longer has to go to dinner looking like a mourner at a feast, for the "fun vest," a waistcoat of wide ribbed silk, is available in 30 or 12 colors, including lilac and royal blue.

Moreover, a man can wear blue kangaroo shoes in the country this autumn and later don dark blue evening shoes to match his midnight blue opera hat with sky blue lining.

In his champagne coat of horizon blue, biscuit color, quaker gray or yellow, fall's bold-spirited man of fashion can go to a night club wearing a scarlet silk sash, or cummerbund. (A Memphis man recently bought a claret-colored dinner suit and plans to wear it.)

Blue derbies will not appear on the avenue until about November, with steel-blue and gray-blue clear-cut worn in the suburbs. Men's coats this fall are about an inch longer, while women's skirts are two inches shorter.

RED ROCK COMPANY HANDLES STERLING

Beer and Ale Franchise Transferred to Atlanta Makers of Ginger Ale.

George A. Frederick, general sales manager of the Sterling Brewers, Inc., in Atlanta Monday, has transferred the franchise of Sterling beer and ale to the Red Rock Company, the oldest ginger ale manufacturers in the United States.

The Red Rock Company has opened a special beer wholesale division for the exclusive distribution of Sterling beer and ale, operating five trucks on the service on these products to the dealers.

Sterling Brewers, Inc., operates a model brewery in the Midwest with a production capacity of over 300,000 barrels per year and has storage aging facilities for beer and ale in excess of 75,000 barrels.

This brewery has been in operation since 1882. The Sterling grain beer is aged in steel glass-lined tanks under the most sanitary conditions, which prevents all foreign odors and tastes, and is sold in the brown bottle which protects it from the sun.

Despite floor opposition, the bill went into conference with scarcely a change from the form in which the senate finance committee turned it out.

Bulk sales were outlawed, contrary to house wishes. The administration would be in the hands of an independent commission of three.

Beer and malt liquors would be excluded from the regulatory measures, also conflicting with house language. Conference committee named by the senate were: Harrison, King and George, democrats; La Follette, progressive, and Keyes, republican.

The commission of three to be appointed by the President at salaries of $10,000 each, would have power under the bill to set up fair trade practices, prohibit "tied houses" handling exclusively the product of one manufacturer, and to prohibit misleading branding and advertising.

DEPOSITIONS TAKEN IN DAVIDSON WILL Testimony of Two Professors To Be Used in Caveat Action.

BOSTON, Aug. 13.—(P)—Depositions in the contest over the will of Mrs. Eliza Statter Davidson, heiress to the Statter fortune, were taken today from testimony of Professor W. Burton Leach, of Harvard University, and Livingstone Hall, an assistant professor.

Mrs. Davidson was found dead in the garage on her Pinehurst, N. C., estate last February, under mysterious circumstances. A month after her marriage to H. Bradley Davidson Jr.

Her will named Davidson as beneficiary. Members of her family have expressed the belief that Davidson was not entitled to the fortune, but that it should go to Isabel Baer, a friend of the dead woman, who was named in a previous will.

Professor Leach and Hall, counsel said, were witnesses of the will which named Davidson.

The depositions will be forwarded to Raleigh, N. C., to be used in a caveat action in the Raleigh courts in September.

Those who took part in the questioning included J. M. Broughton, counsel for the Statter interests.

RATED HIGHEST Candler Field Designated A-1-a by Authorities.

Candler field will be rated A-1-a—the highest—in the ratings of private aeronautical beacon lights to be made by the Department of Air Commerce so that airmen may know what type of light is in a given location and how effective it is, it was learned yesterday.

Ratings will be published in air commerce bulletins, and will replace certifications heretofore issued by the Bureau of Air Commerce, reports from Washington said.

Candler field will be rated "1" because it operates full time, and "a" because its lights conform to the prescribed standards based on federal airways practice, according to Jack Gray, airport manager.

In the ratings A will signify airport, B, airway, C, landmark and D, hazard. There are about 300 private aeronautical lights which supplement 2,000 beacon lights on the federal airways system, the report said.

At Atlanta airport yesterday the mercury slid up to a 93-degree peak at 3 p. m. and then declined slightly. Partly cloudy weather, with occasional thundershowers, is expected today, the forecast reads, but the usual 95-degree weather that has been Atlanta's lot for more than two weeks will continue.

LIQUOR CONTROL BILL APPROVED BY SENATE

House Provision for Bulk Sale Rejected, Stirring New Strife.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(P)—The senate today passed the federal alcohol control bill but precipitated a senate-house dispute by rejecting a house provision for bulk sale of liquor.

The bill, passed and sent to conference with the house without record vote, also departed from the house measure by proposing an administration agency independent of the Treasury Department.

The measure was necessitated by the supreme court decision ending NIRA codes, upon which federal liquor control had been based.

The senate finance committee's recommendation for eliminating the house bulk sale provision and allowing sale only by bottle was approved 50 to 24. Voting for bottle sales in preference to barrels were 37 democrats, 21 republicans, one progressive.

The senate finance committee's recommendation for eliminating the house bulk sale provision and allowing sale only by bottle was approved 50 to 24. Voting for bottle sales in preference to barrels were 37 democrats, 21 republicans, one progressive.

From both camps came declarations that plans of the opposition would foster bootlegging.

"It is easier to adulterate liquor in bulk, in one operation, than to carry on the innumerable operations of adulterating in bottles," asserted Senator George, democrat, Georgia, in charge of the bill.

"I never heard of anybody bootlegging by barrel," was the hot reply of Senator Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, majority leader. Although advised by George that Secretary Morgenthau of the Treasury had pleaded for elimination of barrel sales, Robinson snapped:

"Bootlegging is carried on by bottle."

Despite floor opposition, the bill went into conference with scarcely a change from the form in which the senate finance committee turned it out.

Bulk sales were outlawed, contrary to house wishes. The administration would be in the hands of an independent commission of three.

Capone Feels Iron-Bound Discipline At Alcatraz, Ex-Prisoner Relates

One-Time "Public Enemy No. 1" Clapped in Solitary Confinement for Violating Rule Against Talking; Restrictions on Island Draw Tirade.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13.—(UP)—The House of Eternal Silence, grim Alcatraz prison—where even Al Capone is "burning up" over the iron-bound discipline—was described today by a man who just came out.

"He told how the one-time Chicago 'public enemy No. 1' has been clapped in solitary confinement for violating the nerve-wracking rule against talking."

The narrator was William Henry Ambrose, former narcotics dealer, who was being taken from the "escape-proof" island prison in San Francisco bay for deportation to England.

"The hopeless gets you," brooded Ambrose, who spent a year in Alcatraz. "Capone feels it. Everybody does. At Alcatraz you're marked as a desperado."

"You know you'll never get a parole not a chance for anybody."

"And always there's the punishment of having to keep silence from morning to night. Silence at the table. For 13 days I ate beside Capone."

"Capone has been thrown in the hole three or four times for talking. The non-talking rule is the hardest thing in Alcatraz for him, and for every prisoner there."

Capone Going Up. "But Capone is going up . . . he worked first in the dry cleaning shop and, I think, in the shoe shop. Now he has been promoted to the library."

Chicago's erstwhile crime king, Ambrose said, is burning up at the restrictions of that Alcatraz madhouse.

But the convict who reported that Capone was losing his mind, he asserted, was all wrong.

"Al is not cracking up under the treatment," Ambrose continued, switching back at once in a bitter tirade against the silence rule.

"Not a word can be spoken by the convicts in line, at the table or at work in their cells."

"We get to talk once a week—on Saturday afternoon from 1 to 3:30 when we're allowed in the yard. Nothing more. Of course, we'd try whispering out of the corner of our mouths and we'd use a signal system, but everyone who's caught is punished."

"No radios. Not a single newspaper. You can buy magazines but they come to you with pages and articles torn out."

"You can't pass a magazine to a buddy in another cell, have to turn it over to a guard with the prisoner's number marked on it."

Details Rules. "The guards try kindergarten stuff on prisoners who are supposed to be the worst in America. Silly rules like this:

"If you leave bits of food on your plate, you lose one meal. You've got to eat everything you take at the cafeteria style tables. So if you take a frankfurter and leave the skins because they're too tough, you lose one meal the next day."

"If you leave something on your plate at three meals in a row, then you don't get any meals at all the next day."

"Your letters come to you censored and retyped. Can't get the originals. Out of a three-page letter you may get six or seven lines."

Ambrose, alias Frank Chapman, once tunneled his way out of Leavenworth. Another time he escaped a prison train.

Escape chances at the island prison are extremely remote, he explained, speaking as an expert.

"It's the nearest to escape-proof that it can be made, and the toughest pen I've ever seen. It's a Devil's Island all right."

WEALTHY BROKER HUNTS DAUGHTER Appeal Made to Police in Disappearance of 20-Year-Old Girl.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Aug. 13.—(P)—Several hours after they had been requested to search for Rubie Salie, pretty 20-year-old daughter of M. T. Salie, exposition gem display owner, police of southern California had found no trace of the missing girl.

The father, described by authorities as a wealthy diamond broker, called police shortly before midnight to report his daughter had been gone since noon yesterday.

Police said that Salie, who carries the title "prince" on his business cards, is in reality a "merchant prince" rather than a member of any titled nobility.

Salie reported the circumstances of his daughter's disappearance were mystifying but later it developed she had packed three suitcases, a handbag and had taken her clothing with her after returning from a visit to a bank where she made a deposit of $250 for her father.

If proved, it will be submitted to the general conferences of the northern and Methodist Protestant churches next May. The southern church will not hold its next conference until 1938, so the proposed merger could not be consummated before 1939, its proponents said.

MERGER PLAN DRAFTED BY METHODIST GROUPS

Proposed Constitution To Be Put Before Committee Today.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—(P)—Leaders of three branches of Methodism today completed preliminary negotiations for the proposed merger of the Methodist Episcopal church, North, the Methodist Episcopal church, South, and the Methodist Protestant church.

A "plan" committee of 15 spent the day at the North Shore hotel in suburban Evanston perfecting a constitution to be put before a committee of 45 churchmen tomorrow.

The constitution, if acceptable to the committee and ratified by general conferences of the three denominations, will result in a united church of from 7,000,000 to 8,000,000 members—the largest Protestant body in the United States.

Church leaders expressed confidence the merger would be approved. "If the merger is not approved at the present meeting, it probably never will be," a member of the southern delegation asserted.

Under the proposed constitution, it was reported, the united church would be divided into six regional conferences, each conference to elect a bishop. Negro churches would be given a conference of their own for the first time, reports said.

Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, of Washington, D. C., a leader of the northern branch, presided at the preliminary session. He was assisted by Bishop E. D. Moulton, of Charlotte, N. C., a southern churchman.

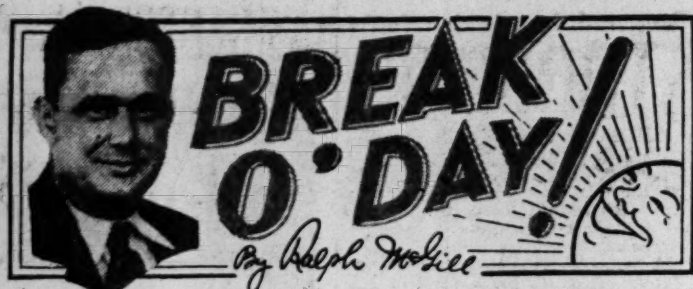

Broomfield, of Pittsburgh, Pa., headed the Methodist Protestant delegation. The proposed constitution was drawn up at Louisville, Ky., last February.

If proved, it will be submitted to the general conferences of the northern and Methodist Protestant churches next May. The southern church will not hold its next conference until 1938, so the proposed merger could not be consummated before 1939, its proponents said.

Thomas Allows Only Five Hits as Crackers Beat Vols, 3-2

BREAK O'DAY!
By Ralph McKee

In May the Pelicans were picking at the coverlets and about to pass away.

In June they were a little better but seemed always about to give up the ghost and slide downward. Only the firm resistance of the Barons, improved from fifth place to seventh by their new banker owners, and the insistence of the Knoxville Smokies to their rights in eighth place, prevented the outlook being very dark indeed for those Pelicans.

By July they began to go places and by late July, of course, they were in form and coming fast down the stretch, the typical Larry Gilbert finish.

The man has done the job so often and so well that no one who knows really gives up on him. His ball clubs rarely start well. They flounder around for the first month or so. And Larry Gilbert laughs it off.

And by late July they are on the way.

His formula is simple. He tries a lot of youngsters in the early part of the season. And some of them annually make good. By midseason he knows what he needs. And there is so much confidence in him in the Cleveland front office that he usually gets help there. If he doesn't he goes elsewhere.

Larry Gilbert may be available for next season. The New Orleans club is owned by a group which doesn't care to continue with it. It is quite possible Larry Gilbert might be available.

And a major league club or a minor one, looking for a manager, would do well to toss all other prospects out the window and put real money on the line for Larry Gilbert's signature on a contract.

MR. KEEFE RETURNS TO BASEBALL.

While the effort of the New Orleans Pelicans to move in the same baseball circles now occupied by the Crackers is a bit too persistent, it has had at least one salutary effect.

Mr. William McGregor Keefe, my old friend and one of New Orleans' best known men-about-town, has at last returned to writing baseball for the esteemed Times-Picayune. For a time he appeared lost to the national game.

The heat in New Orleans is, of course, as bad as ever. It is terrible to think of Mr. Keefe having to endure that terrible pressure while here in Atlanta cooling breezes blow most of the daylight hours and nights are always cool.

In May Mr. Keefe developed a passion for football as the Pelicans drooped. By June he was deep in the future of football at Tulane, Loyola and L. S. U. By July he had arranged for a football school, same to be conducted by the Tulane coaches.

And then the Pelicans started winning. Mr. Keefe is writing baseball with his accustomed gusto and skill. He may trudge along streets wherein the tar is about to bubble, his shoes may slobber with perspiration, but at least he does not have to play football in that weather. The Pelicans have saved Mr. Keefe. They are back on the first sports page.

JIM JEFFRIES—JULY 4, 1910.

When they came to get Jim Jeffries for his fight with Jack Johnson they found him half in bed and half out, lying in a sprawl and snoring. They had waked him up a half hour before.

His body was ice cold on the morning of that day, which happened to be July 4, 1910. And it is rarely cold on July 4. It was steaming hot in Reno. But Jeffries was cold.

He has but a hazy recollection of going into the ring. He recalls only bits of the fight. The many blows that Johnson hit made no impression. It was not until well after the fight that his mind came back.

To this day Jim Jeffries doesn't know if he was doped or not.

He thinks Johnson would have won anyhow, that day. Because after a retirement of five years Jeffries couldn't get back in shape. But he doesn't understand his condition, the mental fog and the blankness of the day before and the day of the fight.

He tells the story for the first time in the current issue of the Satepsop, the last of four articles by Jeffries on his career.

His conclusion is interesting:

"The mystery about that—all this talk about dope—was caused by the way Jack Johnson handled me in the ring, when he finally found out the shape I was in. I have no alibi. I don't know a dime's worth of profit that anybody slipped me anything. Down in my heart, though, I don't believe—and I never will believe—that anything but a 'shot' would explain my blank and my fog and my fighting as bad a fight as I fought at Reno. 'Now I've said my say. That's what I believe. But I still have to admit that I don't know—that, probably, I never will know.'"

Big Jim... it's a good yarn he's written. And he was perhaps the greatest puncher of them all—unless it was Jack Dempsey who was to follow a decade later.

THE IRISH WHIP.

Charley Rentrop, "the bald eagle," arrived in our town yesterday from Memphis. Another arrival was Tom Packs, of St. Louis.

They are here to witness Danny O'Mahoney in his match with Pete Sauer at the ball park tonight. And from all indications the park will be packed.

O'Mahoney's story is another of those Cinderella stories which the year has produced. He was an Irish soldier, doing drill for the Free State. He was a wrestler on the side. Promoters discovered him and brought him to America.

He defeated Jim Londos and then Ed Don George. His style is different from that of the Greek. He is built like a heavyweight fighter and not a wrestler. But he has been laying the boys low. And flat. And he is in the big money. When he goes back to Ireland he will be able to purchase more than a little peat and more than a herd of pigs.

Rentrop will referee. Charley is quite a story himself. Some day I hope to do it. But looking at him tonight, with his tin ears and his scarred face, you'd never think his home was a treasure house of antique furniture. But it is.

SPEAKING OF WATER BILLS.

And Tom Packs, the St. Louis promoter, one of the most successful in the game, has so many valuable and rare shrubs about his home in the Missouri city that his water bill for one month during the drought was better than $1,000. He also goes in for antiques.

Henry Weber, the Atlanta matchmaker, studied the violin in Vienna, and was on his way to be a concert man, but wrestling was too great a lure.

There are more stories in the wrestling side of sport than in boxing.

PELICANS BEAT BARONS AGAIN TO KEEP APE

Club Only 1 1-2 Games Out; Messenger Gives Up But Four Hits.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Only Messenger, of New Orleans, beat Hank Halvey, of Birmingham, today in a pitchers' battle which the Pelas won, 2 to 1. Messenger held the Barons to four hits and Halvey kept New Orleans' seven blows widely scattered.

The Pelas remained one and one-half games out of the lead as the Atlanta Crackers beat the Nashville Vols, 3-2, in a night game.

CHICKS & TRAVELERS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 13.—"Wee Willie" Duke lashed out a home run in the first inning today with a mate aboard and Clay Touchstone, Memphis' portly hurler, went to shut out the Little Rock Travelers, 5 to 0, to win his 18th game of the season.

The Pelas were able to get but one hit off Touchstone for seven innings, and three for the entire game, all singles, included in the Chicks' nine hits were Duke's home run, Watson's triple and doubles by Duke and Marquardt.

Tigers Aided By Browns In Chase In Great Match Tonight

By Paul Mickelson.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—(AP)—They didn't call Rogers Hornsby the "Rajah" for nothing.

All washed up as the Rajah of batsmen, he's the dictator supreme, so it seems, of the 1935 American league pennant race with his base of operations in the cellar, a cellar loaded with dynamite.

It is doubtful whether any manager of a last-place club, excepting George

Stallings, of the Boston Braves, of 1914, ever wielded as much influence on a pennant race as has the Rajah.

As pilot of the lowly Browns, he has:

HELPS DETROIT.

Paved the road to the top for Detroit, losing out of 16 games for the pennant-bound Tigers.

Opened the door to first place for the same Tigers by whipping the Yankees and his old enemy of Chicago Cub days, Joe McCarthy, three times in a row.

Traded plenty of players, but none of them to the Yankees or Tigers.

Blasted the pennant dream of the Chicago White Sox by winning three games in a row, and by tying one in their last four-game series when the White Sox were within striking distance of the lead.

Helped the Red Sox to win the first division, although the Red Sox were back again but with another St. Louis series coming up.

Halted the winning streak of John

Whitehead, White Sox rookie pitching star, at eight and sent him off on a long, losing streak.

And yet, the Browns, 20-12 games

away from the top today and 7-12 games away from seventh place, hold a winning edge over only one team—the Red Sox, whom they have defeated six times in 11 games. They have won only 33 games out of 100 played, yet they have done more damage to flag hopes than an army of chinch

bugs on a good Iowa farmer's crops.

In all they have only three more games left against Hornsby," said

Jimmy Dykes, of the White Sox.

"That must be potent stuff they're serving in the American league cellar

these days. We didn't get dynamite to drink when we were down there last year."

MRS. M. M. ROLLESTON WILL BE BURIED TODAY

Stirring Tribute Paid Patron of North Fulton High by W. F. Dykes

Funeral services for Mrs. Louella Brand Rolleston, wife of M. M. Rolleston, of the Atlanta offices of the Georgia Power Company, will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Spring Hill chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son.

Mrs. Rolleston had been active in civic and church work in Atlanta for many years. She was known affectionately as the mother of North Fulton High school, a term which was bestowed upon her at the last commencement exercises at the school.

Trieste, La. Paid

Striking tribute to Mrs. Rolleston was paid yesterday by W. F. Dykes, the school principal.

"The untimely passing of Mrs. Rolleston has brought the deepest grief to the hearts of all in the city and throughout the state," Mr. Dykes said. "Taken away almost in the prime of life she will be greatly missed especially by those with whom she so faithfully served in so many worthy causes."

"When an effort was made to establish a high school in the northern part of the county she took the lead and it was largely through her efforts that the North Fulton High school was built."

When the first Parent-Teacher association of the school was organized she was made its president.

Her untiring efforts and her radiant enthusiasm endeared her to the faculty and students of the institution.

Mother of School.

"As the mother of the school, as she will always be regarded, she was deeply loved by all who were connected with it.

"She was also president of the E. P. Davis, District Teachers' Association.

"In addition to her valuable work in connection with the schools, she organized the Rose Garden Club, of which she was president for two years, after which she was made honorary president.

"It was through her efforts that the shrubbery at North Fulton was secured for beautifying the campus. In the cold of a bleak wintry day at the risk of her health she superintended the planting of all of it and it will remain for years to come as an evidence of her love for children and flowers.

Was Presbyterian.

"She was a faithful member of the First Presbyterian church. Possessed of a beautiful Christian character, a loyal spirit, and a devotion to service, her life's work has left an imprint that will be permanent.

"A devoted wife, a loving mother, and a loyal friend, she has served her

Dr. J. Sprole Lyons and Dr. E. H. Hill, of Athens, will officiate at the services. Pallbearers will be W. F. Dykes, Milton Bell, Sherred Kennedy, I. S. Mitchell, Roy McCoy and Julian Boehm, of Atlanta, and Joe Billings, of Athens. Burial will be in

CASE OF HOWLING DOG TO BE AIRED IN COURT

The case of the howling dog is scheduled to come up again tomorrow afternoon.

The howling dog is the canine pet of Mrs. W. E. Fallin, of Decatur, who recently sought, through her attorney, W. A. Jennings, an injunction to restrain John Dandergield, her neighbor, from slaying her dog. Dandergield charged the dog's howling was a nuisance. Judge James C. Davis, of the Stone Mountain circuit, denied Yesterday, though, Dangerfield filed a petition for an injunction restraining Mrs. Fallin's pet from howling. The case is set for hearing at 4:30

HENRY SETZE LEAVES HOSPITAL AT MOBILE
MOBILE, Ala., Aug. 13.—(P)—

Henry R. Setze, representative of the Rome division of the Georgia Power Company, who turned up at the city hospital here Sunday night, apparently an amnesia victim, was discharged today and permitted to return home.

Dr. A. J. Brown, hospital interne, declared that although the Georgia utility-salesman had not been under his care long enough to make a complete diagnosis, he questioned the theory of amnesia.

Setze was taken from the hospital Sunday evening, informing attaches that he was "unable to connect things." He could not identify himself then. Setze was taken from the hospital this afternoon by two officials of the Georgia Power Company.

Monument Approved.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today signed the bill to establish the Appomattox battle site as a national historical monument.

Bride-Elect Returns to Georgia To Marry at Burge Plantation

By Sally Forth.

WHEN Miss Dorothy Bolton becomes the bride of Dr. A. Duane Beam, of Detroit, Mich., at sunset this evening down at Burge Plantation near Mansfield, she will represent the fifth generation of her family to have lived in and married from the ancestral home. Her great-grandfather settled there over 100 years ago, and her mother, Mrs. L. D. Bolton, and her grandmother, Mrs. John Davis Gray, the former Sarah Cornelia Burge, were both born there.

Many of the delightful old customs that prevailed during those early days are still adhered to by members of the Bolton family, who spend their summers there, returning to their Detroit home in the winter. For instance, just after Miss Bolton becomes Mrs. Beam this evening she will cut her wedding cake and then step out into the back yard and cut a second cake for the Burge Plantation dainties, who will assemble to pay their homage on the auspicious occasion. They will also be served from huge freezers of ice cream out under the trees while the bride returns to her guests, but they look upon her cutting of their cake as a special and time-honored rite.

Last evening Mrs. John G. Bolton and Mrs. John B. Reeves, of Avondale, entertained the wedding party at Mrs. Reeves' ancestral home, Mount Pleasant, which is a distance of some four miles from Burge Plantation. The two families have been the closest of friends ever since they became neighbors a century ago. Supper was served in the side yard under the giant magnolias and cedars, which have stood guard over many such happy gatherings. A feature of entertainment, was the concert given after supper by the plantation negroes, whose melodious voices were heard in spirituals and old plantation songs. Another affair planned for the wedding guests is the luncheon at which the bride-elect's aunt, Mrs. C. D. Morehouse, will entertain today.

Among the guests who have come from a distance are the bridegroom-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Beam; his brother, Adrian Beam, and Ed Sanders, all of Detroit; Mrs. Heman Ely and her son, John Ely, of New Haven, Conn.; Miss Charlotte Thomas and Miss Lois McIver, of Charleston, S. C.

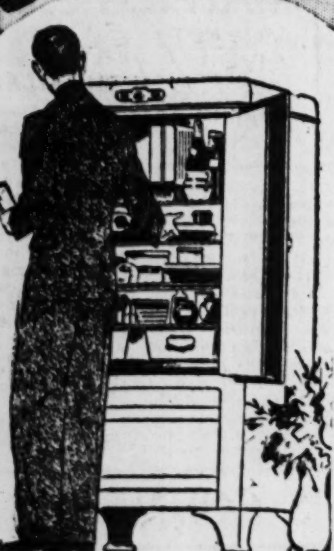

Dr. Beam and his bride will spend part of their honeymoon at the plantation, after which they will sail for Bermuda. Upon their return to Detroit they will begin the erection of a handsome new home at Grosse Pointe. In the meantime they will occupy the Bolton home on Burns avenue.

THE impending marriage of one of the most attractive members of last year's debut will take place on the October wedding anniversary of the bride-elect's parents. For that reason, a great amount of sentiment is attached to the date selected.

Although the engagement of the popular couple has not been formally announced, it has occasioned pleasurable comment with her intimate friends. The bride-elect has spent the entire summer in Europe, and is expected to return to Atlanta.

FEATHER IN HER HAT

By Julie Anne Moore

WHAT WAS GOING ON? Ann Rogers and Rita May, back in the days when they were met by Bill Rogers, a newspaper man, at the Washington Monument, were the wide steps of which they had come, hand in hand, only a few minutes before. Then Ann was pointing.

"That," said Bill, "is the reflecting pool Mollie's anonymous friend was telling her about."

Ann stared at him a moment, then abruptly turned to the window. "Come on—let's get out of here."

Leaving the Washington Monument, Bill and Ann got into the car. "Now where?" he asked, kicking the start.

"I'm afraid I've seen too much—too many buildings—already," then Ann remembered something. "The Japanese cherry trees," she cried. "I've simply got to see them."

Bill tapped a knuckle on the windshield. "The Tidal Basin—James!"

Watching Bill's profile, Ann wondered what he had in mind. He, in fact, had thought of her as a girl since they left the apartment. Nothing he had done or said had revealed anything more than the casual sort of interest any man might have shown in any girl who had commanded her services as a sight-seeing guide.

She slid her arm along the back of the seat and her fingers rested lightly on his shoulder. Bill kept his eyes on the road.

"What is it you don't like about me, Bill?"

"What?" His eyes came around for a moment. "Not today."

"You're all right, as far as I know," Bill said.

"You don't care for me particular?"

"Not I."

"Do you?"

Bill grinned. "I haven't played that for years. I don't even remember the rules of the game."

Ann bit her lips and looked away. She liked Bill—how much she was afraid to ask herself, for though she had never seen him until last night, she had felt from the first meeting at the railroad station that she had known him for a long time. It had seemed to her then that they were beginning a new life, as old friends who understood each other and needed no preliminary adjustment of temperaments. . . . But if this feeling had been mutual, as she had wanted to believe, there had been no indication of it on Bill's part today.

The silence got Bill at last. "Mighty quiet, Rita," he said. "What's on your mind?"

"You wouldn't be interested," Ann said, casually.

"O. K., Baby," he said as he stopped the car at the Basin. They walked to the water's edge. "Lovely . . ." Ann breathed. She stepped back and gazed down the long row of cherry trees observing how they leaned over the mirror-like surface of the water, as if, she thought, to gaze down at their reflections. "It must be gorgeous when they're in bloom."

Bill sat on the ground with his back to a tree. "Don't mind if I rest, do you?" he said, as he lay back and looked up at the sky. "I was up all night looking for Lee Monday and I'm weary."

"Perhaps I'm mistaken," Ann reminded him, quietly, "but I seem to remember that you were to meet Mollie Monday at Mollie's apartment this afternoon."

He shook his head. "That's off . . . I saw him for a minute this morning at his hotel. He had a heavy date this afternoon, but you're to meet him at Runbrecker's tonight."

"That's nice," Ann smiled. She sauntered off, slowly tapping the trunks of the trees as she passed. The third tree she circled and made her way back by the same process.

"Fascinating pastime," Bill said. "Your own invention?"

She did not answer, but dropped down beside him, suppressing a smile. "I suppose you know Lee Monday and I are old friends, Bill?"

Bill's head jerked around. "No, I didn't know. I thought you'd never seen him. That's why I gave him Mollie's address last night. Where did you know him?"

Ann lay back on the grass and gazed up at the blue sky. "Can you keep a secret?"

"I can try," he leaned forward, a cupped hand to his ear.

Quite soberly, Ann said, "Lee and I slept in Mollie's apartment last night."

Bill straightened up, staring. "You ought to be paddled for talking like that," he said, suddenly catching her arm, pulling her up and forcing her to look at him. "Listen, Rita—you're being plain crude. Snap out of it."

Ann winced. "I wasn't aware of being plain. I was just being hurtling."

She made a futile effort to free herself. "What difference does it make to you whether I'm crude or not? You don't even like me."

His hand came away as if her arm had been hot metal. "No," he growled. "I don't even like you."

She was amused and pleased by his anger. "So this, amary. She had taken a small card from her purse and she held it out to him. "Suppose now you'll say it's forged."

Bill looked at the face of Lee Monday's card, turned it over and with some difficulty read it aloud.

"Sorry it happened, of course—and glad. Hope to drop in about four this afternoon and personally express my gratitude for a perfect night. L. M."

The blood was slowly creeping up Bill Hudson's neck, into his face. Watching, Ann was suddenly afraid to prolong the little comedy.

She told him, briefly, of Lee's unexpected arrival at the apartment and of their pathetic efforts, dead tired as they were to carry on a conversation.

"Rita says we looked like two children who had fallen, exhausted, in the middle of a game. She left us sitting there on the couch, adjusting himself to this new and obviously true version of her story. Finally he burst into laughter, his head shaking in that funny way it had when he was really amused. After a while he looked down at the card.

"But where did this come from?"

"With a dozen orchids—real ones—this morning."

He peered at the card, intently. "Four o'clock when?" he asked, looking up. "Not today."

Ann smiled. "Didn't you say he told you he had a heavy date this afternoon?"

Bill's face was a study. "Do you think I'd have brought you out here if I had known?"

"Certainly not. That's why I didn't tell you."

"But why, Ann? Don't you realize?"

"Because I preferred to come out with you, Ann said firmly.

"That's not a reason."

"Isn't it? I thought it was a very good reason."

Through a long silence their eyes held, Ann's lips quivering with a smile that never quite formed. Bill gazed at her, full of a new and troubling thought. Then Bill got to his feet and walked to the water's edge and lit a cigarette. Ann did not move. When at last he slowly strode back, Ann looked up at him.

"I want to give you some good advice, Ann."

She nodded, politely attentive.

"Steer clear of newspapermen. They're a wild, faithless pack and if you ever make the mistake of falling in love with one, you'd be unhappy the rest of your life."

It was a long while before Ann nodded. Then she got to her feet and brushed off her frock and smiled at him. "All right, Grampa," she said. "I'll try to remember that—but it may not do any good."

When they reached the apartment, Rita and Ann were in earnest conversation. . . . There had been an other mysterious telephone call. This time Rita explained. It had been Selma Runbrecker's brother, Deane, who had called. "In the house of representatives—with an ice-cream," she said, plainly awed by her own words.

"What do you make of it, Carl?" Bill asked.

The DEBUNKER

FREEZING WATER DOES NOT GIVE OFF ANY COLD

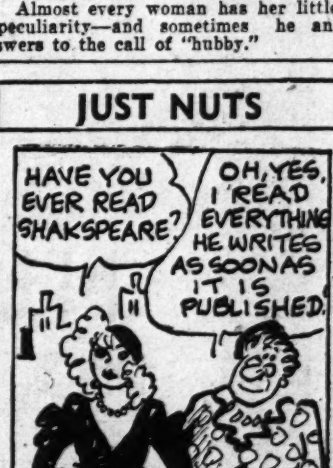

When water freezes it gives off heat rather than cold. Physicists state that 79 calories of heat are given off by every gram of water converted into ice. Likewise when ice is melted it absorbs an equal amount of heat. It is because of this fact that your ice-box is kept cool. If the ice did not melt there would be no absorption of heat.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

IN AFRICA WITH LIVINGSTONE.
VIII—The Explorer Is "Lost."

Negroes in Africa told Livingstone strange stories, and among them was the tale that a lion was "a chief in disguise."

Some natives who heard the story did not believe it, or only half believed it. One of them, a lion hunter, boasted which had stolen some meat from the camp.

"So you're a chief, are you? What kind of a chief are you to come around in the dark to steal our buffalo meat? Are you ashamed of yourself? You don't have the heart of a chief!"

The native spoke in his own language, but Livingstone knew the meaning of the words; he had learned several languages used by tribes in Africa. Personally, he did not like lions; and he said that a lion was a "majestic sneak."

After making another journey to Great Britain and writing another book, Livingstone returned to do further work in southeastern Africa. Month after month passed as the bold doctor went farther and farther toward the heart of Africa. He traveled more than 700 miles inland from the coast, and reached Lake Tanganyika.

Meanwhile people in Europe and North America began to wonder where he was. Had he been lost in the wilds of the Dark Continent? Had natives shot him with poisoned arrows? Had he been made a prisoner by cannibals?

There was a report, which spread without good reason, that the famous explorer was dead. This caused James Gordon Bennett Jr., editor of the New York Herald, to send a reporter to Africa to find out whether the report was true, and to give help to Livingstone if he was found alive.

The man chosen for the task was Henry M. Stanley, who was 30 years of age. Stanley was born in Wales, and was baptized under the name of James Rowlands; but he had gone to New Orleans as a cabin boy and there had been adopted by Henry Morton Stanley, whose name he took.

On January 6, 1871, Stanley reached the island of Zanzibar, off the southeast coast of Africa. There he made ready to go with a party of natives into the wild lands where he hoped to locate Livingstone.

Stanley had had many adventures during his life as a reporter; but his first trip into little-known parts of Africa was to be the most famous of his career. People who read newspapers were ready to bet that Stanley would find the daring Scotch explorer.

How to Have a Soft, Smooth, Exquisite Skin

For red, coarse, oily or shiny skin, and rough, spotted, wrinkled complexion, never use ordinary face powder because it clogs the pores and creates an unhealthy condition. In place of powder, foundation cream and lotions, use Cu-Crema, which will produce a beautifully clear, soft, smooth and healthy complexion.

Cu-Crema contains absolutely no mercury, yet is guaranteed to remove "shine" and make your skin soft, smooth and lovely in an unbelievably short time. Soothing and refreshing, its presence cannot be detected, except for its charming, delicate odor. Cu-Crema is considered by many the most refined and exquisite of all complexion preparations, because it gives the skin an appearance of natural loveliness without that "powdered" look.

Cu-Crema does not rub or dust off on clothing and is therefore excellent for use on the neck, arms and hands. It positively will not grow hair. A large jar, white, with a blue label, for only 50c. At all drug and department stores. Cu-Crema Company, Dept. 3-C, Lynchburg, Va.—(adv.)

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Dear Miss Chatfield: My husband and I have been forced to live with my mother-in-law for the entire year of our married life. Circumstances made this a last resort. My husband has been very kind and considerate and has always tried to put me first in everything. His mother resents this heartily and is forever hurting his feelings. She meddles in his affairs and has no privacy and will not realize that her son isn't tied to her apron strings any longer. My husband's salary is small. We are considerably in debt and are afraid to undertake the responsibility of a separate establishment yet awhile. I am with this mother-in-law the entire day and by night I am so nervous that I am degenerating into a nagging, fretful wife. Now what advice can you give me?

IN-LAW

Answer: Suppose we try to arrive at the solution of your problem by the process of elimination. You can't teach an old dog new tricks and you can't change the disposition of a dominating, jealous, possessive parent. Possession is nine-tenths of the law and your husband's family owns the home. He cannot afford to give you a home of your own, so you must stay where you are. You are dependent upon his family. According to your own confession he has done his utmost to put you in first place and show his family that you mean more to him than all the rest. Yet this has added fuel to the flame. Then here are the hard facts. You must rescue yourself or perish, for the family won't do it, and your husband can't.

You have three separate incentives, or should have. Your own peace of mind, your husband's peace of mind and the ultimate outcome of your marriage. Let a situation like this fester and no matter how much you love each other in the beginning, you will come to hate each other because of the circumstances that surround and invade your life together. So get down to brass tacks and acknowledge the truth. Beggars can't be choosers. While you live from room to room, you are to some extent alone on your own. You are so long as you accept that bounty you are obligated to them. Even though what you accept is not to your liking, you are accepting. Your husband is caught in a trap and instead of putting your hand through the bars to him and comforting him, reminding him that some day he is going to be extricated, you are snapping and snarling at him and making his predicament worse. You are letting the ugly enmeshment of your mother-in-law arouse take possession of you and let me tell you, they will destroy you, given time. Granting that he is mean and unreasonable, this is no excuse for your becoming like her.

Instead of spending all the daylight hours in her company, go to your own room and read, when your household duties are done. In your spare time, take your husband and go out for a walk, if you cannot afford anything more expensive, instead of mulling over the disagreeable features of life in the home, think about the fact that you wouldn't live in that home if you couldn't live in that home. And then think about some home. He is worried and harassed by debt, humiliated at having to put you in unbecoming surroundings, embarrassed by his mother's behavior toward you and no doubt by yours toward her. He is faced with one of the hardest tasks a man can face, trying to keep peace between two women who love him and hate each other. He is in a worse pickle than you are. Then out of this mess, think about the college boys say "look at the board, see what the score is" and put up a fight to reverse it. He is the one who should be the one to get out of the mess, and you, largely because you have given up the fight.

PROFIT TO GEORGIA BY FHA IS $15,475,000

Millsaps Report Show Jobs Provided for 21,850 Men by Loans.

Georgia has profited by the National Housing Act to the tune of $15,475,000, it was announced yesterday by John W. Millsaps, director of the southeastern region of the F.H.A. The amount of money has been spent in the state on the modernization and repair of homes and buildings, according to latest reports from 115 better housing program committees and the 15 permanent housing headquarters established.

The reports show that 21,850 men have been put to work and 4,333 moved from the relief rolls through money advanced by banks and loan agencies to home owners and building owners whose credit is approved by the F.H.A.

House-to-house canvasses by the F.H.A. in its campaign for the modernization and repair of homes and buildings have brought 30,858 jobs, at an estimated value of $12,937,792.90.

In addition to the modernization and repair phases of the F.H.A. activities, Mr. Millsaps said, more than 600 applications for refinancing of existing mortgages as well as for new construction, for the total of $2,278,418, have been received in the underlying housing program of the Atlanta office.

MAN SERIOUSLY HURT AS TRUCK OVERTURNS

A man known only as "Williams" was in serious condition in Grady hospital last night, suffering a fractured skull and possible internal injuries received when the rear tire of a truck bound for Rome, Ga., rolled out, causing the machine to overturn on the Marietta highway near the Chattahoochee river.

M. J. McCullough, driver of the truck, received minor injuries and William Hicks, 28, of Kennesaw, Ga., received a 10-inch laceration of the scalp and injuries to an arm. McCullough told officials that he and the two men were on a ride when approached on Produce row.

The injured were taken to the hospital in an Ambulance and a balance. Williams had not regained consciousness last night.

BREACH RUMOR DENIED BY MOTHER OF ASTOR

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

The Shift Bid.

The shift bid is a favorite trick of contract bridge players, and before contract was played it was used by auction players. Briefly defined, a shift bid is the bid of a player's weakest suit made with the purpose of discouraging the opponents from bidding the suit, and it may be their strongest. The shift idea develops if a penalty double is made, for then the bidder returns to a genuinely strong suit in his hand. Obviously the shift bid is only the common garden variety of psychic. Against timid players who often do not double when they should, it may, times be used freely and successfully.

Styles by Annette

Before she came Mrs. Lacey and Nancy decided they would be sure to tell her the new velvet story they had heard from an exceptionally well-informed source. "Mrs. Page, I can't say enough nice things about the new velvets. Look at this material and see how soft it is. See how soft it feels when you touch it. This velvet is the final choice, but they hoped they might be able to guide her choice."

Then there are the velvets that are soft and smooth. All the velvet you see as the person wears them and moves about is a dull glint of gold. It makes the dress look all right, but it's not velvet. There are velvets with a black pile woven on a colored back that are high style too. But best of all, these new velvets are in the medium price range so that now you can get quality as well as beauty, not to mention the flattery that velvet always adds.

You might have to reduce to wear these dresses. Nancy has a leaflet on reducing which she will send you on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write your request care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

Care of Nails Is One Trial of Well Groomed

By MIGNON. One of the fine products recently introduced to women for getting rid of the old process of cutting the cuticle, which never was very satisfactory, is a cream, pink, in a flat jar and entirely unique. The cream is not expensive and it goes a long way. You will find it a consistency between a very soft soap and a cream, and quite magical in its effects.

If you want to know where you can purchase any article mentioned in this column phone Mignon, at The Constitution. Please do not write unless you live outside the city, in which case enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For the wives and dates of the Junior Chamber members, there will be bridge and many special games in which valuable prizes will be awarded. Mrs. Joe W. Ray is chairman of ladies committee.

At 8 o'clock dinner will be served on the beautiful terrace of the club. Dado Keller, Jaycee vice president, will act as master of ceremonies. Dancing will follow, with Frank Richards, as chairman.

Cliff Hendrix, president of the Georgia Junior Chamber of Commerce, has issued a call for a board of directors' meeting for that day, and Jaycees all over Georgia have been issued a special request to be the guests of the Atlanta organization.

Lillian Mae Patterns.

SHIP CANAL GRANT
SOUGHT BY FLORIDA

Delegation Confers With Senator Fletcher in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—A delegation from Florida conferred with Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, democrat, Florida, today on procedure to press for a federal allotment to open the proposed Florida ship canal.

General Charles G. Summerall, retired, president of the National Gulf Atlantic Ship Canal Association, said after the meeting "there is nothing to say—nothing at all," and added, "we have no definite program for our meeting here."

Arrival of the group in Washington followed closely the statement by President Roosevelt that he did not think it right to proceed with the canal without specific authorization from congress.

Mr. Roosevelt said a checkup showed the project probably would cost $146,000,000.

TWO ARE INDICTED
IN DOLBOW KILLING

Widow and Norman Driscoll Accused of Murder
Plot.

SALEM, N. J., Aug. 13.—(AP)—The April grand jury, called into special session, returned a joint indictment today charging Mrs. Margaret P. Dolbow and Norman Driscoll with the murder of her farmer-husband, Harry. His bludgeoned body was found in his barn August 3.

Prosecutor W. A. W. Grier announced soon after the couple's arrest that the widow had admitted plotting the slaying with Driscoll. Driscoll refused to talk to the authorities.

Counsel for Driscoll, however, stated that his client denied knowledge or any part in the crime, and declared that Mrs. Dolbow denied making the incriminating statements attributed to her by the authorities.

OVER 600 PERSONS DIE
WHEN BIG DAM BREAKS

Bursting of power Dam
Sends Wall of Water
Across 43 Square Miles.

TURIN, Italy, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Estimates that more than 600 persons—possibly 1,000—may have perished in the bursting of a hydroelectric dam in the vicinity of the Alessandria town of Ovada were made tonight by rescue workers.

The raging flood waters, pouring through the shattered dam on the swollen Orba river, laid waste an area of 43 square miles in the vicinity of Ovada today.

A vast volume of water, stored up by mountain storms, swept over the countryside, washing away scores of homes, wiping out small factories and crumpling a half dozen railroad and highway bridges.

No Definite Toll.

The rescue workers, troops and police, who were rushed with supplies to the stricken area, said they could not estimate the toll of the dead until daylight.

Scores of injured were given emergency treatment at hospitals and first aid stations and others, made homeless by the sudden flood, spent the night in makeshift shelters.

Destruction of the hydroelectric power station at the dam threw the area into darkness, adding to the havoc. Power service over a wide area was disrupted.

The catastrophe descended on the hapless countryside with tragic suddenness. The first warning was a terrific roar like that of thunder rolling in the surrounding mountains, as the dam collapsed.

Then a great wall of water rolled down from the river, engulfing towns and villages. First reports said 100 inhabitants were drowned in Ovada alone—a town of about 10,000.

In the absence of more definite information, police tentatively placed the number of homes destroyed at more than 100, and said scores of others were wrecked beyond hope of repair.

Inhabitants of Ovada and the neighboring villages of Rocca, Grimaldi, Casale and Cernelli fled for their lives before the sudden wall of water. Scores were homeless and although the waters were receding tonight, they sought shelter in the open, fearing to return to their inundated dwellings.

The only warning to the unsuspecting countryside that the dyke had broken was a terrific detonation, which the townspeople took for a thunder-clap.

The dyke, erected three years ago across the river for the maintenance of a hydroelectric station, impounded the waters for a lake about six miles in length.

As the flood surged onward, the bodies of humans, the carcasses of animals and the debris from wrecked dwellings could be seen in the powerful current.

Many clung desperately to the roofs of their houses, waving frantically for help until their homes collapsed beneath them.

One railroad bridge was washed out eight minutes after a passenger train had passed over it and three bridges were destroyed, including the main provincial highway span.

The victims were mostly women and children who were trapped in their homes at the time of the disaster.

POLITICS HINDERS
STATE, SAYS HERTY

Noted Chemist Asserts Georgia Is Isolated Nationally.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Declaring that "too much politics" was Georgia's worst defect at the present time, Dr. Charles H. Herty, director of the Savannah pine paper laboratory, said in an address here tonight, "until the people get interested in other things besides politics, the state's progress will be hindered."

Dr. Herty said, "we in Georgia have adopted a spirit of isolation on national matters, and have failed to get on and get the larger national viewpoint."

The noted chemist, who is an alumnus of the University of Georgia, declared that even on the campus at the university, politics is the foremost topic of discussion. The people of Georgia have been entirely too mixed up in their own politics and have not studied the affairs of the nation along the new lines of thought," he said.

Georgians are not receiving "high calls" from the President, not because of any prejudices on the part of the chief executive, but because the basic fact underlying it all is that Georgia is isolated from the problems of government," he said.

Take the University of North Carolina, he said. "On the campus national problems were debated, each student gave deep thought to them, and consequently, today look at the large number of those same boys, who are holding prime positions in the government."

Fig—$5 a basket. At least that is what a basket cost Mrs. B. Banks, of 1197 Virginia avenue, yesterday. Mrs. Banks told police that a young boy came to her home offering the figs for sale. When she gave him a $5 bill he claimed not to have the change and took the money "to get change at a store in the next block." He did not return.

Miss Della Smith, of Laurel, Ind., who was found shot near the East Lake Country Club about noon Monday, remained in a critical condition in Grady hospital last night, attaches reported. The woman, who first gave her name as Marylin Hill, of Tampa, Fla., was found lying on the sidewalk with a revolver containing one discharged cartridge, beside her. A message indicating an attempt to take her own life was found, police said.
